The Minnesota Chippewa Tribe Political Structure and Organization course, presented in this publication, was made possible by an appropriation from the United States Office of Indian Education, P.L. 92-318, Title IV, Part B.

The opinions expressed in this publication do not necessarily reflect the position or policy of the United States Office of Indian Education, and no official endorsement by the Office of Indian Education should be inferred.

Copyright 1978
THE MINNESOTA CHIPPEWA TRIBE
Cass Lake, Minnesota 56633

Illustration and Artwork by Mary Lou Reich, Susan Clark, Carl Gauboy
Typesetting by Ni-Mah-Mi-Kwa-Zoo-Min
Published by Bemidji Pioneer
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The Minnesota Chippewa Tribe Curriculum Development staff wishes to acknowledge the general assistance of the many encouraging people who gave information, suggestions, time and other personal input to assist us in this development. We would especially like to show our respect and gratitude to those tribal people who have maintained a sense of our way of life that it could be the basis of our continuing academic efforts.

We wish to express our thanks to the following staff members of Bemidji State University for their valuable technical assistance: Dr. Ralph W. Magnuson, Chairman of the Department of Elementary Education; Sister Andrea Mathaler, Chairperson of the English Department, and Mr. Donald G. Anderson, Assistant Professor of English.

Important contributions were made by several Minnesota Chippewa Tribe staff members particularly the publications staff who did the typesetting, provided information and photographs and were direct catalysts for finalizing this publication. We are grateful to Betty Blue, Roxanne LaRose and Linda Buckanaga for their support and assistance during some tedious and trying times.

Appreciation is extended to several organizations: The Minnesota Historical Society for providing historical photographs and permitting this project to adapt pages 42-52 of The History of the Ojibway Nation, William Warren; Ross and Haines Old Books Company, publisher; Black Hills State College, Indian Studies Program, for authorizing adaptation of their curricular format.

Appreciation is extended to Mr. Charles Robertson, Curriculum Developer, for effort put forth in finalizing the layout of the text.

Most importantly, contributions were made by several schools in the area of pilot testing. They are Waubun High School, Waubun, Minnesota; Bug-o-nay-ge-shig Alternative School, Cass Lake, Minnesota; and the School within a School Project of Onamia High School, Onamia, Minnesota.

We are grateful for the notable artwork of Carl Gavboy, Susan Clark and Mary Reich, whose capabilities as a secretary deserve special attention.
FOREWORD

"Although the Indian is well known in Minnesota through folklore and place names, and although most people when asked express some curiosity, some interest, and real sympathy for the group, there exists considerable misinformation and misunderstanding about the Indian in Minnesota. Many intelligent and well-informed persons still picture the Indian in a teepee, while others believe he is the recipient of an allowance paid by the federal government. Few realize that the Indian is a citizen both of this nation and of the state and that as such he is entitled to share in all the benefits and privileges of that citizenship."

The above statement was part of a report by the Governor's Interracial Commission of Minnesota entitled The Indian in Minnesota dated 1952. Unfortunately, this statement is as true in 1978 as it was over a quarter of a century ago. The relationship between Minnesota's largest minority group and the general public today remains about the same.

This course is a sincere attempt to clarify some of the misinformation and misunderstanding about the legal status, inherent and negotiated rights, past and present legislation, and programs and services of The Minnesota Chippewa Tribe. This course is also a review of the historical circumstances of white settlement in Minnesota showing the condition of Indian affairs here has been and still is a complicated subject of much concern due to federal trust relationships.

It is hoped this course, through the education process, will dispel many of the myths of the federal and legal status of Indian people, and provide a more harmonious relationship between Indian and non-Indian students in the public school system and the adults of the general public.

This unit on Minnesota Chippewa Tribal Government begins with the form of government known to the Chippewa before contact with European people and shortly thereafter. Ensuing activity from that contact until the present time brought the need for certain agreements. These agreements came about in the way of treaties, legislative acts, congressional policy and administrative directives. The current tribal structure was formed from those legal policies and is more actively working towards equitable interpretation for today's and tomorrow’s Chippewa people.

William Schaaf
Charles Robertson
Curriculum Developers
The Minnesota Chippewa Tribe
TABLE OF CONTENTS

Acknowledgements ........................................................................................................... i
Foreword .......................................................................................................................... ii
Table of Contents ............................................................................................................. iii

CHAPTER ONE

A. Traditional Chippewa Tribal Government ................................................................. 1
B. Totemic Division of the Ojibwe ............................................................................... 4
C. Signers of Treaties .................................................................................................... 9
D. Waub Ojeeg ............................................................................................................... 18
E. Hole-in-the-Day I and Hole-in-the-Day II (Kwi-We-Sence) .................................... 22
F. Old Bug ..................................................................................................................... 24
G. Present Day Traditional Chiefs .............................................................................. 27
H. John Flat ................................................................................................................... 28
I. Student Worksheet .................................................................................................. 29

CHAPTER TWO

A. Chippewa Treaties, A History and Overview ......................................................... 30
B. What Treaties Meant to the Chippewa and the United States ............................... 34
C. What Treaties Meant to the United States ............................................................... 36
D. The End of Treaty Making ..................................................................................... 39
E. Contemporary Relationships with Indian/U.S. Treaties ........................................ 40
F. What is the basic outline of a Treaty .................................................................... 43
G. Why a Treaty .......................................................................................................... 43
H. Who is involved in making a Treaty ..................................................................... 44
I. Who can make Treaties ......................................................................................... 44
J. Examples of specific treaty articles of the Chippewa, what land was lost, what rights were taken .... 49
K. Student worksheet questions ............................................................................... 52
L. Treaty with the Chippewa, 1826 ......................................................................... 53
M. Treaty with the Chippewa, 1837 ......................................................................... 38
N. Treaty with the Chippewa of the Mississippi and Lake Superior, 1847 .......... 60
O. Treaty with the Pillager Band of Chippewa Indians, 1847 ................................. 63
P. Treaty with the Chippewa, 1854 ......................................................................... 64
Q. Treaty with the Chippewa, 1855 ......................................................................... 69
R. Treaty with the Chippewa, Mississippi, and Pillager and Lake Winnibigosshish Bands, 1864 .... 74
S. Treaty with the Chippewa, Bois Forte Band, 1866 ............................................. 77
T. Treaty with the Chippewa of the Mississippi, 1867 ............................................. 79

CHAPTER THREE

A. The Indian Reorganization Act of 1934 and the establishment of The Minnesota Chippewa Tribe ....... 82
B. The period immediately following the Meriam Survey ......................................... 85
C. Efforts to repeal the Indian Reorganization Act ................................................... 94
D. Points to remember about the Indian Reorganization Act .................................. 95
E. Student Worksheet .............................................................................................. 97

iii
CHAPTER FOUR

A. The Structure and Powers of Contemporary Minnesota Chippewa Tribal Government........................................... 98
B. Geographical and statistical data of The Minnesota Chippewa Tribe.
   1. The White Earth Reservation......................................................... 101
   2. The Leech Lake Reservation.............................................................. 101
   3. The Mille Lacs Reservation.............................................................. 101
   4. The Nett Lake Reservation.............................................................. 101
   5. The Grand Portage Reservation........................................................ 101
   6. The Fond du Lac Reservation............................................................ 101
C. The Minnesota Chippewa Tribe and the future........................................... 101
D. Presidents for The Minnesota Chippewa Tribe since the Indian Reorganization Act........................................... 101
E. Reservation Business Committee Structure........................................... 101
F. Minnesota Chippewa Tribe - Tribal Executive Committee Structure................................................................. 101
G. The Minnesota Chippewa Tribe - Map of member Reservations................................................................. 101
H. The Minnesota Chippewa Tribe, 1978...................................................... 11
I. Revised Constitution and By-Laws of The Minnesota Chippewa Tribe................................................................. 11
J. Student Worksheet Questions................................................................. 12

CHAPTER FIVE

A. Federal Legislation and Policy................................................................. 12
B. The Nelson Act.......................................................................................... 12
C. The Indian Citizenship Act of June 30, 1924.............................................. 13
D. The Johnson O’Malley Act of 1934............................................................ 13
E. The Indian Reorganization Act of 1934........................................................ 13
F. House Concurrent Resolution 108 and Public Law 280.................................. 13
G. The Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act, 1975................................. 13
H. Student Worksheet......................................................................................... 14

CHAPTER SIX

I. INTRODUCTION - Program and Services of The Minnesota Chippewa Tribe................................................................. 14

II. Economic Development Division
   A. The Minnesota Chippewa Tribe Construction Company.......................................... 14
   B. Economic Development Division............................................................... 14
   C. The Chippewa Ranch Complex................................................................. 15
   D. Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA)....................................... 15
   E. Local Business Development Organization.................................................... 15
III. Education Division

A. Higher Education Scholarships and Grants Program ......................................................... 164
B. The Johnson O’Malley Program ...................................................................................... 167
C. Boarding School Application Process............................................................................. 169
D. Parent Committee Training Project ................................................................................ 170
E. Head Start Training and Technical Assistance Program ................................................... 172
F. Curriculum Development Project .................................................................................... 177
G. Talent Search Program ..................................................................................................... 179
H. Indian Action Team .......................................................................................................... 181
I. Direct Employment Assistance and Adult Vocational Training ............................................ 182

IV Health Division

A. Health Planning Program .................................................................................................. 184
B. Elderly Nutrition Program ............................................................................................... 187
C. Housing Planning and Development Program, HUD 701 .................................................. 189
D. Home Loan Program ........................................................................................................ 192

V Social Services

A. American Indian Foster Care ............................................................................................ 194
B. Supportive Services for American Indian Youth ............................................................... 197
C. Bureau of Indian Affairs Contract ................................................................................... 199
D. Student Worksheet ........................................................................................................... 200