Jeff May Chosen As Reader’s Digest Hero of the Year

How could anyone ever possibly forget the Red Lake School shootings that happened on March 21, 2005? Red Lake student Jeff May, tried to defend himself, his classmates, and his teacher by using the only thing he had on him as a defense mechanism, a pencil, and possibly saved the lives of himself, his teacher, and countless others. He jabbed the young man hard in the side who was dressed in a trench coat that had stalked into his classroom and had begun to shoot randomly at the students. The shooter, Jeffrey Weise, shot and killed 8 people that day and wounded 7 others in the deadliest school shooting since Columbine. Weise shot and killed himself after the deadly shooting spree.

Reader’s Digest will honor Jeff on April 7 at the New York Stock Exchange, where he will ring the closing bell.

Congratulations, Jeff, we are all so proud of you and we thank you!

NO CHARGES FILED AGAINST BUG-O-NAY-GE-SHIG SCHOOL STUDENT FOR THREATENING NOTE

Leech Lake Band of Ojibwe Press Release

Cass Lake, MN – The Cass County Attorney’s office recently determined that charges would not be filed against a 13-year-old child who attends the Bug-O-Nay-Ge-Shig School for writing in her journal several threatening comments and a diagram of her classroom. In a phone conversation with the Leech Lake Band of Ojibwe Legal Director, Michael Garbow, Mr. Maus stated that after the investigation was completed it was determined that the child never intended to deliver the message to anyone and therefore, there was never any intent to actually threaten anyone.

The note was discovered in the child’s school desk by a student who was not authorized to go into her desk. The 13-year-old child, when questioned about the note readily admitted she wrote it, but stated she had written it several weeks previously and that she had no intentions of giving the note to anyone nor did she intend to hurt anyone.

County Attorney Earl Maus said that they would not have been able to charge for an “attempt” under current State law because no substantial step had been taken towards the commission of a crime. Investigators found no evidence of any weapons nor any indication of any steps taken to commit a crime. The case has been appropriately referred. Further details of this case are not public data pursuant to Minnesota laws.

Sitting on her chair by her window, she sits and watches things. She looks up and smiles happily. Grandkids, great-great grandkids, children and in-laws, all gather at Grandma’s house. Sometimes she tells stories of long ago, or things that she went through. She talked about old shows that showed, and of the sun coming up. I love my grandmother very much, for she’s taught me many things. She will never be forgotten of all her wonderful doings. Sadly missed by her children, grand children & great grandchildren.

Leech Lake Veterans Memorial Wall of Warriors
Phase II of the Leech Lake Veterans Memorial
By Ted Bogda, Leech Lake Honor Guard

Last August the Leech Lake Veterans Memorial Honor Guard and the Leech Lake American Post Legion 2001 constructed a memorial to the Native Americans who lived on or worked for the Leech Lake Reservation who gave their lives in service to their country while on military duty. Those persons who were prisoners of war and missing in action were also honored. The monument was inscribed with the names, branch of service and cause of death. Two people were honored with plaques as missing in action and two persons were honored on the monument as former prisoners of war. Two more names will be added to the monument this spring. Aaron Fairbanks who was in the Army was captured during WWII by the Germans and Charles V. Smith who died in Alaska in 1943 while in the army air corps during a mission. The cause of death at this time is still unknown. One official document lists it as KIA while another lists it as DNB.

The monument is located south of the entrance to the Leech Lake Veterans Memorial Powwow grounds near the Palace Casino. To the south of the monument are three large flag poles, one with the American flag, one with the Leech Lake flag and one with the MIA/POW flag. On the east and west sides of the monument are three flagpoles on each side. On each of the poles are service flags representing the Army, Navy, Air Force, Merchant Marines, Marine Corps, and the Coast Guard.

The second phase of the monument will be started this spring. A cedar wall 4 feet by 12 feet will be placed thirty inches off the ground in front of the three large flagpoles south of the monument. The wall will be held in place by three ceder poles placed in the ground, which the wall will be attached to. On top of the wall will be the inscription, “Wall of Warriors”. Decorative wood will be placed between the lower edge of the wall and the ground.

On the wall, nametags will be placed which will be 1 inch high by 4 inches long. The tags will be colored, black for any Native American or a descendant of a Native American who served in the military. A gold nametag will identify those Native American veterans who gave their lives in service of their country while on duty in the military. White nametags will represent those veterans who were prisoners of war.

The nametag will have the following information on it. On line one the male veteran will have his first name, middle initial and last name imprinted on the tag. The female veteran will have her first name, maiden name and married name inscribed on the tag. If single, the tag will be the same as the male veteran. On the second line will be the birth year, death year if appropriate, an abbreviation for the band or tribe, such as LL for Leech Lake, WE for White Earth, B for Blackfoot, etc. The third line will have the era that the veteran served in such as WWII, WWI, Spanish American War, Viet Nam, Korea, Gulf War, and Operation Iraqi Freedom, etc. The line will be blank if the veteran served during a time of peace. The fourth line is reserved for those awards that the veterans received which are purple heart or a higher award, such as a bronze star, silver star, distinguished service cross, navy cross, etc. If the veteran is still living, the death date will be left blank and will be added at a later date upon the death of the veteran.

Presently, we have approximately 599 tags completed and another 100 names submitted to the MCT for verification of tribal affiliation. Many of the veterans identified were from veteran burial markers from the cemeteries that the Post 2001 provides ceremonies for on the Memorial Day weekend on the Leech Lake Reservation with the exception of Pine Grove Cemetery in Cass Lake, the Deer River cemetery, Greenwood cemetery in Walker and the Remer cemetery along with many family plots. The Post needs your help in finding the veterans who lived or worked on the Leech Lake Reservation. The eligibility criteria is as follows: Any veteran who is from the Leech Lake Band or a descendant of a Leech Lake Band member, no matter where they reside, is eligible to be honored and placed on the Wall of Warriors. Any Native American veteran or descendant of a Native American who in the past lived on or presently lives on the Leech Lake Reservation or who lived near the Reservation and worked for or on the Leech Lake Reservation is eligible to be placed on the Wall of Warriors. If in doubt, submit the name and the Post will decide if the person is eligible. Both living and deceased veterans will be placed on the wall. A veteran is one who served in the military in one of its branches, the Army, Marines, Navy, Air Force, Coast Guard or Merchant Marines.

Your help is needed to identify the Native American veterans who served their country in the military who are Leech Lake members or descendants, or who are Native Americans from other bands or tribes who lived on or worked for the Leech Lake Reservation. If you are a veteran or have a veteran in your family, or know of a veteran, we need his/her full name, date of birth an death if deceased, the band or tribe the person is from, what service branch the person served in, sometimes more than one, and the dates of service if known, and any awards of purple heart or higher. If you know a Native American Veterans, tell him about the memorial. Also give an address or phone number that you can be reached at if there is a question on any material that you submit. Our goal is to have as many Native American veteran names as possible on the wall this Memorial Day, and we can only do this with your cooperation and help.

Please send the information to the following persons: Ted. M. Bogda, 14941 Iowana Beach Road NE, Bena, Minnesota 56626, phone 218-665-2318 or to Gina Erwin, 1305 East 24th Street, Minneapolis, MN 55404, phone 612-721-0207.
Cass Board Will Not Oppose Leech Lake Band’s Application for Trust Status on Tribal College Land

Joint committee will be formed to discuss future fee-to-trust issues
Gail DeBoer, Staff writer The Pilot-Independent

Cass County commissioners agreed Feb. 21 not to oppose the Leech Lake Band of Ojibwe’s efforts to place a 30-acre parcel into tribal trust status for the Leech Lake Tribal College.

After hearing from Tribal Attorney Wayne Bohn and County Attorney Earl Maus, the board voted 4-1 to support fee-to-trust status for the 30-acre parcel. Commissioner Jim Dowson cast the lone dissenting vote. No action was taken on two other fee-to-trust applications.

A second motion named Dowson and Commissioner Virgil Foster to a committee of Tribal Council and county representatives to study future fee-to-trust transfers.

The fee-to-trust transfer also is supported by Pike Bay Township.

Cass County historically has opposed all Leech Lake Band fee-to-trust applications to the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) because they remove properties from the county tax base without reducing demand for services, thus placing an unfair burden on remaining taxpayers.

Bohn argued that the beneficial economic impacts of Leech Lake Gaming from employee wages, health care, taxes paid and construction projects, far outweighs any lost tax revenue. He also cited the benefits of a tribal police force to back up the Sheriff’s Department, and contributions Leech Lake makes to fire protection and ambulance services.

Because less than 5 percent of land inside reservation boundaries is owned by the Leech Lake Band, rebuilding the land base through fee-to-trust transfers is very important, he explained.

The BIA has recommended the Band apply for 9 to 12 parcels each year. If Cass continues to object, the process takes about three years; without objections, 15 months.

“You can take the position that the county will always oppose fee-to-trust transfers, but this will continue,” Bohn declared. “We are trying to rebuild the land base for the Leech Lake people by reacquiring land that was sold, taken, stolen or illegally transferred.”

Commissioner Jim Demgen wondered how many of the alleged illegal land acquisitions involved state and federal governments and how many involved the county.

Virgil Foster said he felt the county should support the fee-to-trust application in this situation.

Even with the Tribal College property, which is currently not taxed, Maus said Cass opposes transfer because at some future time, the property use might change.

He agreed the Band was a good employer but countered that economic benefit is not a valid argument. Other large private employers generate economic benefits and still pay property taxes.

“This is a national trend; counties are opposing putting land into tribal trust,” Maus declared.

Bohn replied that Carlton County, home to the Fond du Lac Reservation, supports fee-to-trust transfers.

Maus encouraged the Band to apply for state tax exemptions on several parcels that very likely would be approved, based on the parcels’ current uses. Bohn said he was working on that issue.

Leech Lake Band of Ojibwe Tribal Offices will be closed on Tuesday, April 4, 2006 for the Leech Lake Primary Elections. Offices will reopen on Wednesday, April 5, 2006 at 8:00 a.m.

Camp Rabideau Designated as a National Historic Landmark.

By Melissa Rickers, US Forest Service

On February 21, 2006, Secretary of the Interior Gale A. Norton announced the designation of 12 sites in 11 states as National Historic Landmarks, including Camp Rabideau. The designated sites were recommended by the National Park Advisory Board for their diverse history and because they contain aspects of America’s national heritage.

Rabideau Civilian Conservation Corps Camp, is located six miles south of Blackduck, MN in the Chippewa National Forest. Purchased in 1934 the Camp was occupied by Civilian Conservation Corps enrollees from 1935-1941. Rabideau was home to about 300 young men, largely from Minnesota. Rabideau CCC was listed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1976. Volunteers have actively worked with the Chippewa National Forest to restore five of the thirteen remaining buildings. Currently Camp Rabideau is open to the public and during the summer months on-site hosts are available for interpretive tours. Rabideau CCC camp is one of the best surviving examples of a CCC camp and has the largest surviving collection of unaltered structures in the United States.

The National Historic Landmark designation is the highest such recognition accorded by our nation to historic properties. These special places are the actual sites where significant historical events occurred, or where prominent Americans worked or lived, and represent the ideas that shaped our nation. Fewer than 2,500 historic places carry the title of National Historic Landmark.

National Historic Landmark designation recognizes and preserves America’s diverse cultural and architectural heritage. These national treasures are exceptional places that shed light on our history and help explain our past.

“It is through these landmarks that we preserve and share our history with future generations”, Norton said.

Opinions

Dear Representative Frank Moe & Sherri:

I thought it was time to write and thank you for all your efforts relative to the Military Funeral protests matter, which I brought to your attention last January. As I said then, this disturbing and highly sensitive issue would one day arrive in our great state and indeed I am sort of depressed that it occurred so quickly in Anoka.

There are a number of bills being presented, and I was grateful that you took the lead in this matter. Marty Sievert’s bill (Marshall) seems to hit the bull’s eye, but any bill will address the issue.

As we’ve discussed, I am primarily concerned over the reactions of the relatives, family and friends, but also must be concerned over the actions of my fellow Veteran Military Honor Guards. This issue could explode easily into uncontrollable levels, as the emotions are at their very breaking edge during military funerals. I’ve been deeply concerned over this issue and thank you from the bottom of my heart for your continued leadership toward a resolve to this frightening action taken by such a small group.

Bug-O-Nay-Ge-Shig School News

Bug-O-Nay-Ge-Shig Students Have Fun With Art.
By Victoria Nadzins, MS/HS Art Teacher

Art Class is getting more creative and fun with wild projects in the making. We learned about an Abstract Expressionist artist Jackson Pollock who became famous for his action painting. Students enjoyed this project, as they were free to express themselves spontaneously and allowed the color of paints and random objects to become part of their final results. Art is an important source of expression. Here at Bug O Nay Ge Shig we are expressing ourselves and having a great time!!! Thanks to all my students’ help and creative energy that help make our school more colorful and fun.

Our hallway in front of the “Art Zone” is becoming quite an interesting art gallery. Please remember to respect our artist’s work and look, but don’t touch. The gallery changes daily so please feel free to stop by and check it out!! Looking forward to our final Art Show, which will be packed with multi media masterpieces at the end of the school year. This is one not to miss. Don’t forget to invite your family & friends to show off your work. Stay colorful and remember to exercise those imaginations, they can open a lot of interesting doors toward your enriched future.

Former Chicago Gang Member, Drug Dealer & Addict, Speaks at Bug-O-Nay-Ge-Shig

The Bug-O-Nay-Ge-Shig school was fortunate to have Ronald Smith, Jr. come to our school on February 8th and 9th and present several powerful motivational speeches. He came to us through our School Resource Officer, Jimmy Hansen, who is a close friend of Ron’s. Ron grew up on the west side of Chicago in the projects and is a former gang member, drug dealer, and drug addict. He hung out regularly with the Gangster Disciples, and after years of finding himself in and out of jail for robbery (to support his drug addiction), he turned his life around. Today, he is Rev. Ronald Smith, Jr., a street preacher from Chicago. His vow is to help kids through motivational speaking. He wants them to choose the right way. Ron started the program “Choose to Lose” which is committed to educating and preventing youth from the perils of gang and drug involvement. A commitment that will allow youths to become productive citizens within their own communities. Our school would like to collaborate with other programs and agencies in the area to bring Ron back for follow-up presentations.

Nigaane Program Uses Only Ojibwe Language

A group from the Dakota & Ojibwe Language Revitalization Alliance and the Alliance of Early Childhood Educators visited the Nigaane Immersion Program at the Bug-O-Nay-Ge-Shig School last month. They are developing an Immersion Program in Minneapolis and needed some information on how Nigaane was developed, program and administrative challenges, and general classroom practice ideas. They were all very pleased with what they witnessed and wish to form a network where we can work together in the common challenge of bringing our Native Languages to the front of the English only atmosphere. We were very happy to have them visit and wish to extend an invitation to all Native speakers to visit our program. The only rule is to leave English at the door when you enter.

School Now Offers Extended Activity Classes

The CLC Program is now offering guitar lessons on Monday nights for high school students from the Bug-O-Nay-Ge-Shig School. Frank Sam has been learning the guitar from his cousins and other friends and has signed up for this program for additional instruction. He has been demonstrating a great interest and talent in the area of music so the CLC is helping to provide an opportunity for Frank and others to pursue their interest in music. Gil Applebee has told us that Frank is very talented, picks up on things quickly, and is a pleasure to work with. We think it’s great that the School is offering such programs and if you have any questions about our many great CLC extended activity programs, please contact Sandy Johnson at (218) 665-3000, ext. 3040.

Recommendations are designed to reduce number of unexpected infant deaths in Minnesota. Unsafe sleeping conditions were factors in 24 infant deaths in Minnesota in 2004. Nationwide, the federal Centers for Disease Control (CDC) reported that in 2002, 636 infants died of suffocation and 425 of those occurred while infants were sleeping in beds. Unlike deaths caused by Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS), most of these deaths were accidental and therefore preventable.

Since the inception of the 1994 national “Back to Sleep” campaign to place babies on their backs to sleep, the SIDS rate in the United States has declined 53 percent. As understanding of SIDS has evolved, death investigation findings have provided important clues about other factors that can cause or contribute to other sudden and unexpected infant deaths. Research has demonstrated that practices such as infants sleeping with parents or siblings in beds or on sofas are hazardous and can cause death due to asphyxia or entrapment. The presence of fluffy comforters, stuffed toys, pillows in babies’ cribs or sleep areas can also pose a suffocation danger for them.

These tragic deaths coupled with the research findings prompted the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) to include recommendations for ensuring a safe sleep environment in their revised recommendations to reduce the risk of infant dying unexpectedly from unsafe sleeping conditions as well as SIDS.

- Always place baby on his or her back to sleep, for both naps and at night.
- Place baby on a firm sleep surface such as on a safety-approved crib mattress, covered by a fitted sheet.
- Keep soft objects, toys and loose bedding out of the baby’s sleep area.
- Do not allow smoking around baby.
- Keep baby’s sleep area close to but separate from where you and others sleep.
- Think about using a clean pacifier when placing baby down to sleep.
- Do not let baby overheat during sleep.
- Avoid commercial products that claim to reduce the risk of SIDS.
- Do not use home breathing monitors to reduce the risk of SIDS. They are not effective for that purpose. Also, avoid medically prescribed apnea monitors, which have not been shown to reduce the risk of SIDS.
- Reduce the chance that flat spots may develop on the back side of your baby’s head; provide tummy time when baby is awake.

“Unexpected infant deaths continue to devastate many families,” said Josh Petrikin, M.D., president-elect of the Minnesota chapter of the AAP. “We hope to get the word out that numerous steps can be taken to reduce the risk of these unfortunate deaths.”

The AAP also recommends continuing the "Back to Sleep" campaign, which has been successful in educating families about the importance of placing infants on their back for sleep to reduce the risk of SIDS. The Minnesota Department of Health plans to work with its partners on a multi-pronged educational program to promote the messages that will help families create a safe sleep environment for babies. The program will include outreach to public health and health care professionals, public safety officials, child protection workers and parents.

Burning Garbage - Not in Leech Lake’s Backyard!!

New Regulations Starting April 1, 2006

The burning of household garbage, demolition materials, and recyclables are illegal in the State of Minnesota and on the Leech Lake Reservation. Burning of garbage and other debris causes pollution that is unhealthy for wildlife and people. Burning garbage damages not only the air quality, but also the soil and water in your own backyard, where your children or grandchildren play, where your pets play and live, in your garden, and in nearby ditches, lakes, and rivers. Smoke from burning household garbage and other materials contain many harmful chemicals. Ash residue contains pollutants, such as lead, mercury, arsenic, chromium and cadmium. Smoke from a neighbors burn barrel could equally affect your yard and theirs. Even plain white paper when burned, can give off chemicals such as dioxin. This is caused by the products that make up the paper that can include shiny gloss, plastics integrated into the paper, chemicals to bleach the paper or color it, and the post consumer recycling content. It is no longer our elder’s garbage and we have the ability to recycle and reuse. The soil near a burn barrel can contain high concentrations of dioxin that will linger for years to come. One burn barrel can create as much pollution as one TON of garbage burned at a municipal incinerator. Animals are equally affected by eating plants near a backyard burner. These plants can absorb the dioxin and ultimately dioxin makes its way to humans who eat the animals or crops grown in the contaminated soil. With the dioxin concerns from the Cass Lake St Regis Superfund site Leech Lake does not need any further introduction of dioxins into our environment.

Ultimately backyard burning wastes resources. Many of the items commonly burned could be reused, recycled, or composted. The only material that can lawfully be burned with a permit and under certain conditions are brush, tree trimmings, and other vegetative material, and unpainted lumber that contains no glue or resins. Not only does burning waste resources that can be recycled or reused, but open burning, such as in burn barrels, is a major cause of wildfires in Minnesota. Last year alone 40% of wildfires in the State of Minnesota were started by careless open burning.

Because of these concerns and in an effort to control a major source of air pollution on the Leech Lake Reservation the Air Program modified the previous Open Burning Ordinance and imposed a certification and permitting system for backyard burning. Starting April 1st, 2006, the Division of Resource Management’s Air Program Staff must certify the burner before you can obtain a permit. Once your burner passes certification you can receive a permit for the use of your burner. Permits can be purchased at the DRM for a cost of $50 and are valid till April 1st of the following year. Please see the Leech Lake Open Burning, Burn Barrel, and Fire Prevention Ordinance 02-06 or stop by the DRM for more information regarding what can be burned and specifications for burners. In an effort to curb backyard burning and encourage recycling, the Air Program is offering FREE pick up of your burn barrel and they will exchange it for two FREE recycling bins. Contact the Air Program for more information on the exchange program and any other questions regarding backyard burning at 218-335-7429. Waste not, Burn not.

PLEASE OPPOSE THE PRESIDENT’S FY 2007 BUDGET REQUEST TO ELIMINATE THE URBAN INDIAN HEALTH PROGRAM

President Bush has proposed the elimination of the Urban Indian Health Program within the Indian Health Service. Urban Indian health programs report that such a cut would result in bankruptcies, lease defaults, elimination of services to tens of thousands of Indians who may not seek care elsewhere, an increase in the health care disparity for American Indians and Alaska Natives and the near annihilation of a body of medical and cultural knowledge addressing the unique cultural and medical needs of the urban Indian population held almost exclusively by these programs. According to the 2000 Census, nearly 70% of Americans identifying themselves as of American Indian or Alaska Native heritage live in urban areas. Notably, the Urban Indian Health Program receives only 1% of IHS funding, stretching those dollars to achieve extraordinary results.

Urban Indian Health Clinics provide unique and non-duplicable assistance to Urban Indians who face extraordinary barriers to accessing mainstream health care. What Urban Indian health programs offer cannot be effectively replaced by the HRSA’s Health Centers program.

- Urban Indian Health Programs Overcome Cultural Barriers.
- Urban Indian Health Programs Save Costs and Improve Medical Care by Getting Urban Indians to Seek Medical Attention Earlier.
- Urban Indian Health Programs Are Better Positioned to Identify Health Issues Particular to the Native Community.
- Urban Indian Programs Are Better Able To Address The Fact That Movement Back And Forth From Reservations Has An Impact On Health Care.
- Urban Indian Programs Are A Key Provider of Care to the Large Population of Uninsured Urban Indians Who Might Not Go Elsewhere.
- Urban Indian Programs Reduce Costs to Other Parts of the Indian Health Service System by Reducing Their Patient Load.

Rather than the President’s proposal, please urge Congress to support a $12 million increase for Urban Indian programs in the FY 2007 budget.

Write a paragraph about what the Urban Indian Health Program has meant to you and send or fax with your name and address to NCUIH’s attorney, Greg A. Smith, The Smith Law Firm, 2099 Pennsylvania Avenue NW, Suite 850, Washington, DC 20006, fax #: 202-265-4901.

To Plant a Tree

By Jean Ramstad, Deer River/Marcell Ranger District, CNF

Planning for the regeneration of a forest stand actually begins before the old stand is harvested. Foresters start by writing “prescription” for the area, which determines the steps that need to be taken to achieve the desired objectives for the future. The foresters consider how harvesting this stand and its future regeneration will affect other aspects of the ecosystem. They meet with biologists, hydrologists, soil scientists, fisheries and recreation specialists to determine the most appropriate approach to managing the land. Some of the major considerations include the forest type and age of the stand, type and age of adjacent stands, topography, soil type, proximity to lakes, streams and wetlands, the presence of threatened or endangered species, the presence of heritage sites, and recreation uses in the area.

The prescription will determine how the harvest should be conducted and in turn, what will be involved in the regeneration of the stand. There are a multitude of options, but some of the most common types of management plans are:

- Clearcutting: This is the removal of the trees in a stand at the same time. Clearcuts are usually done in areas where the desired species require sunlight to grow. Aspen is usually clearcut and allowed to regenerate naturally from sprouts. Pine usually requires some preparation of the site, followed by hand planting. In recent years, most clearcuts are designed with a certain number of reserve trees left standing. The reserve trees allow for diversity in the tree age, species and some potential for wildlife nesting and food sources.

- Shelterwood: This type of management system provides for natural regeneration and is often used for shade tolerant species. In this scenario, the majority of the stand is removed, leaving openings large enough for young trees to become established. The remaining overstory provides the desired percentage of shade and sunlight. No planting is required because the young forest comes in under the mature canopy.

- Final cut: harvest is similar to a Shelterwood harvest, but has fewer trees remaining in the overstory. These mature trees serve as a seed source for regenerating the new stand.

- Thinning: This type of cut involves the initial removal of a portion of the trees in a stand, which allows those remaining enough space to grow to their highest potential. Thinning can be accomplished by taking scattered individual trees, taking entire rows of trees or cutting a strip out. After a thin, no planting is usually done until the final harvest, which may be many years later. This procedure is often repeated for long growing species like aspen, red and white pine. The final cut is usually a clear-cut, followed by hand planting of seedlings.

- Planting: is usually done in late spring as soon as the ground temperature reaches about 40 degrees. The young seedling should be in the ground before the days get too warm and before the buds start to elongate. In areas where hand planting is planned, some preparation of the site may be required. More aggressive preparation is needed in situations where an aspen stand is being converted to a pine stand. In this case, prep work may involve burning the aspen suckers or using mechanical treatment of the suckers to retard their growth.

- After the initial planting, there is still work to do. Aspen is a tough competitor. Even after site prep, most young pine stands may still need to be released from encroachment. This involves manual removal of the remaining aspen suckers. If white pine has been planted, the seedlings will need to be capped or sprayed with an organic substance to keep the deer from browsing. Follow-up surveys are conducted after the 1st, 3rd and in the case of conifers, 5th year. The surveys will determine the rate of survival and any tending that may be needed in the stand release animal pruning pine. The little on their way.
