Champion Brady Fairbanks Signs with BSU to Play Basketball
By Patsy Gordon

Amongst some jovial ribbing and jokes between Brady Fairbanks and his high school classmates, Fairbanks signed his “National Athletic Letter of Intent” to join the ranks of Bemidji State University’s basketball team. Seventeen year old Fairbanks is currently a senior at the Cass Lake Bena High School and will graduate next month.

Recently, Fairbanks and his teammates, the Cass Lake/Bena Panthers took home the 2nd place State Basketball Tournament trophy and red ribbons from the Minnesota State High School Leagues. They made all of us hometown fans so proud!

A faculty member from the CLB School at the signing said, “We are proud, we are all very proud!”

When asked what he was going to major in, Fairbanks said, “I am undecided at this point, I just want to concentrate on getting all my generals done first!” He said he chose BSU as the college of his choice because it is close to home and family, the school has a good coach and his friends can come and watch him play.

Fairbanks went on to say that, “the players there are tougher, stronger, faster and better shooters, but the spring training they will be put through will get me ready to join them.”

Fairbanks’s brother, Leroy, and one of his coaches couldn’t help but tease him a little during his signing. Leroy said, “I want this to go on record that he’s scared about being on his own next year.” Coach Mike Hanson said, “Yea, he’ll have to cook his own mac.”

The best of luck and best wishes to Fairbanks from the entire Cass Lake/Bena community.

You have made us proud and have done so well!

Minnesota Tribes Seek Wild Rice Protection
Reprinted with permission from Don Davis, State Capitol Bureau

Minnesota’s Chippewa say wild rice is so important that the state needs to protect it from being contaminated by genetically modified rice.

“Wild rice is more important to us than you probably realize,” Leech Lake Tribal Chairman George Goggleye, Jr. on Tuesday told a Senate committee considering regulating genetically modified wild rice. “I urge the committee to honor the first people of this state by letting this pass.”

“Wild rice is integrated in our lives,” added Bois Forte Tribal Chairman Kevin Leecy.

Several senators said the provision would change by the time it reaches its next committee hearing. A similar bill is before any attempt to plant it.

Sen. Steve Dille, R-Dassel, and other senators said they would prefer just making use of genetically modified wild rice illegal instead of requiring a study before any attempt to plant it.

Several witnesses told senators there are no efforts to genetically modify wild rice, but bill supporters said protection is needed now so it doesn’t happen.
LL Tribal College Students Honored

Nicole Beaulieu

Nicole Beaulieu has been a recipient of a $500 scholarship from the Spirit of Sovereignty Foundation. Recipients are chosen primarily on their accomplishments and contributions within the American Indian Community while attending college, but Nicole has also distinguished herself as an outstanding scholar. She is an honor student at LLTC and is listed in the 2007 Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges.

Dawn Farr

Dawn Farr has been named to The National Dean's List 2007, a prestigious award received by only 1/2 of 1% of our nation’s college students. She was named to the President’s List (4.0 GPA) for the Fall '06 semester, and is listed in the 2006 Who’s Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges. Dawn was also a member of the cast that took second place in the Playwriting competition at the annual AIEHC Student Conference in Rapid City, SD.

Amanda Burnette

Amanda Burnette has been named LLTC’s Student of the Year, and is the recipient of a #1000 scholarship from the American Indian Higher Education Consortium (AIHEC). Amanda is actively involved in community activities, including the Indigenous Environmental Network and a wild rice project sponsored by Purdue University. She was named to the Dean's List for the Fall '06 semester at LLTC, and is listed in the 2007 Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges.

Being Active Keeps Your Heart Healthy

Karey Lyon RN, MSN, NP-C, Program Coordinator - Leech Lake Healthy Heart Project

In our great grandparent’s generation, there was not much heart disease. This is because people were so physically active. They worked outside to grow, herd, hunt and gather their food. They chopped wood and hauled water. They walked or ran most places. They danced and played running games.

Today, we drive cars instead of walking. We sit at desk jobs. We sit in front of televisions. Instead of hunting and gathering, we buy food already prepared at the grocery store. Instead of physical activity being part of our everyday lives, we have to make time for physical activity.

While our lives today are easier in many ways, our hearts are suffering. Physical activity helps to strengthen our heart muscles. It lowers our blood pressure and our blood cholesterol, which reduces our risk for heart disease. Physical activity helps us keep our weight at a healthy level, which also reduces blood pressure, blood cholesterol and the risk of heart disease.

Physical activity also relieves stress and makes us feel better. Physical activity actually releases chemicals in our brain that combat depression. Besides, many kinds of physical activity are fun! Walking, dancing, and playing basketball give us social time with our friends and family. So, why don’t we turn off the television and go outside to play?

Sometimes, it is just a matter of changing habits. Can you walk to the store instead of driving a car? Can you park your car further from the store so that you walk a little more through the parking lot? Can you get up from the couch to get something you need, rather than asking your child to bring it to you?

Just 30 minutes a day of physical activity can reduce the risk of heart disease. This does not have to be all at one time. It can be for 10 minutes three times a day. Any activity is better than no activity. Walking is the easiest way to start exercising. You can do it at almost any age. You can do it when you are in almost any shape. You don’t need any special equipment. It does not cost anything. You can do it almost any time and any place. It almost never causes injuries. You can do it with other people, including your children. You don’t need a babysitter.

To benefit from walking, you should feel your heart beat faster than usual. You can start slow and build up to walking faster, further and for a longer time. Our Indian dances and games are also great ways to strengthen our hearts. We are not only keeping our culture and spirituality alive, but we are also reducing our risk of heart disease.

In this monthly column, I will be sharing other ways to reduce your risks for heart disease. Also, you can call me at 335-4500 if you want more information about heart disease and how you can get involved to strengthen the heartbeat of our community.

Missing Red Lake Boys Found Dead.

By Patsy Gordon

After missing for nearly 6 months, 4 year old Avery Stately, and 2 year old Tristan White have been found dead.

They were found encased in ice in a nearby lake located just a half mile from their home. They reportedly had wandered one day late last fall onto the lake where they had been intrigued by a beavers house. Both boys fell through thin ice and drowned.

Bloodhounds were unable to pick up their scent last fall, but as soon as the snow and ice started to melt, the bloodhounds tracked their scent immediately the day they were found.

Lake Bemidji Water Quality A Concern

Lake Bemidji looks bright and inviting, attracting area residents and visitors alike to boat, fish and swim and to attend festivals in Library Park and at Lake Bemidji State Park. What if new kinds of pollution threaten the water in this river-fed lake, home to the first city on the Mississippi River?

Lake Bemidji’s water quality is key to the quality of life of the greater Bemidji region. On Saturday, April 21, the public is invited to a forum to consider Lake Bemidji water issues. The forum is scheduled from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Beltrami Electric meeting room, 4111 Technology Dr., N.W. Reservations are required and can be made by calling Dr. Lois M. Kruger, (218) 751-3366, or mailing a check made out to “LWVBA” to Dr. Kruger; 3900 Irvine Ave., #749; Bemidji, MN 56601. Reservations are $10 and include lunch.

Heiko Schoenfuss, director of St. Cloud St. University’s Aquatic Toxicology Laboratory, will discuss implications of a “hot spot” identified in the Mississippi River between Lake Irving and Lake Bemidji. Dr. Schoenfuss testified in January before members of the Minnesota Legislature that new kinds of water pollutants are causing fish in such locations as Bemidji’s “hot spot” to have both male and female sexual characteristics.

Jim Hodgson, Minnesota Pollution Control Agency planner; Rita Albrecht, Bemidji assistant city planner; Brian Freeberg, Bemidji city engineer; and Jeff Hrubes, Board of Water and Soil Resources, will discuss Lake Bemidji water quality. They will include in their discussion how state and local managers address water quality issues now and how they plan to address water quality challenges as these present themselves in the future.

Bob Shimek of the Indigenous Environmental Network (IEN) will also speak about water and its importance in the web of life. Shimek is IEN’s Special Projects Coordinator, overseeing projects addressing toxics/dioxin, mercury, endangered species, biodiversity, and energy and forest issues.

The League of Women Voters of the Bemidji Area is sponsoring the April 21 forum. The sponsorship grew out of the local League’s reading of a study of the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (MPCA). The study assesses how well the MPCA addresses its statutory mission “to reduce the amount of pollution that is emitted in the state” and whether it practices “good government” in carrying out its mission. The League considers good government to include:

- Decisions made on solid, objective evidence;
- Equitable application of regulations, without regard to politics or economics;
- Access to decision making for the public; and
- Open and accountable decision-making process.

The study concludes that the MPCA has a difficult mission, with many constraints, little consensus, and very high stakes. The Bemidji League elected to conduct a Lake Bemidji water quality forum with the MPCA to help the community understand the current condition of this important local resource.
Let’s Develop a Business Project.

What are the ingredients of a successfully business development project?

Wow, I didn’t think it was such Hard Work!

By John Herrera, Business Development Director

Often people observe the opening of a new business with different points of view. In general, people are not aware of the extensive amount of work that goes into a new business project. This article will attempt to help the reader understand the process that takes place in a new business start-up. The first phase is recognition of a business opportunity. In the case of the Shingobee Project a former restaurant located on Leech Lake looked like a great opportunity. Upon closer inspection the site was in fact in a great location perhaps the best on the lake and highway 371/200 however, it struggled to make money.

Case in point, even with a great location unless you have the right management projects will run into trouble. To make it work the next needed ingredient and perhaps the most difficult had to be addressed.

The selection of a key person to run such an operation calls for someone with experience, education and the ability to take something from a raw idea and bring life to it as a new business. Fortunately, a manager was identified with extensive previous experience, education and who had been through the start-up cycle with his own business. The manager in this case is key to putting the right assumptions together in formulating a business plan. All of the assumptions involved with operations begin with the process of defining the capacity of the building, the needed furnishings, equipment and working capital. This leaves the issue of what construction will cost.

In the case of the Shingobee Project a construction manager was identified and that person joins the team to run through the required process of selecting an architect and contractor then overseeing the construction. This process will identify where and how much will be needed in order to complete construction, build additions and improve the site around the building.

Simultaneously, the issue of finance is dealt with. In other words, how much will the project cost and where will it be paid from? Fortunately, in the case of the Shingobee Project it will be the second year recipient of one million dollars being invested over three years by the Shakopee Community to assist Leech Lake in building it’s non-gaming business base. Now the balancing act starts, in other words the project must be made to fit the available investment dollars. In order to get to this number we subtract the projected non-construction assumption from the available investment dollars this leaves what can be used for construction. The project is at this stage currently. Once initial the plan is approved the project can begin physically.

This by no means is the end of story. At the same time the above process is happening there are many many operational issues being addressed. The human resources division (HR) is helping with job descriptions to match the projected staffing requirements. HR will also be involved in the hiring and orientation of new employees.

The Department of Resource Management will be involved with granting permits for construction, well/septic and dock usage at the site. Legal will be involved at various stages in the process to assist with such issues as permitting and contracts. Gaming is involved with of building condition and transfer related issues.

The auditing group will be involved with assisting management with issues involving cash controls such as the point of sale equipment, daily reporting, inventory control and other related issues. The accounting office will be included in order to assist with setting up a chart of accounts and other steps in preparation for the actual operations. Security has already given input on cameras and parking lot lighting. And the list goes on...

The constructive input provided by all of the Leech Lake team will make for a better and more successful project!

Richard Armstrong Releases CD After Surviving Massive Heart Attack

Richard Lee Armstrong, Ojibwe music man, is an enrolled member of the Minnesota Chippewa Tribe. Richard was born Feb. 4, 1943 on the Leech Lake Indian Reservation. His father was Everette J. Armstrong who was killed while serving in the Army Air Force during WWII when Richard was one year old. His mother was Virginia S. Fairbanks.

Richard’s music has been dubbed country boogie woogie, a blend of classic country, old time rock n’ roll, and Native American, which makes it very unique.

Richard wrote and sings on all 10 original songs, plays rhythm guitar, bass guitar, lead guitar, and the Native drum on all songs in the selection except, “Excuse Me Pretty Lady,” and “Congratulations.” The Fleshman are the back up group. “Beyond the Blue” features Lacy Armstrong on back up, and in the piece “Landlord,” Reba Armstrong also sings back up. Any screeching that you may hear in this collection is a contribution from Richard’s grandchildren, Tyra and Isabella (The Hipriders). He sends out a special thanks to everyone who helped make his collection.

“Thunder of the Circle” was written after Richard had a massive heart attack, medically died nine times, and was in a coma for 18 days.

A half-hour before they were going to pull the plug to his life support, Richard regained consciousness. During this experience he saw the light, heard the music, took the walk, and came back again to share the “Thunder of the Circle,” with everyone.

Because of a weak heart and diabetes, he has lost five toes on his left foot and most of his foot on the right.

He would like to thank Dr. Ung for saving his legs. The sun, the moon, the earth, four seasons, night and day, life and death, man and women, what we think, say and do all follow the circle. It is your choice what drum you choose to dance to. What comes around goes around.

Check his webpage for information on any song in his collection at www.rlarmstrongojibwemusicman.com.

Cooking and Eating to Lower Your Cholesterol

Karey Lyon, RN, MSN, NP-C, Program Coordinator - Leech Lake Healthy Heart Project

In the last article, I wrote about measuring the cholesterol in your blood. High blood cholesterol raises your chances of heart disease, which can lead to heart attacks and strokes. While cholesterol is in your blood, it is also in the food you eat. We call this dietary cholesterol. Scientists have found that if we eat a lot of saturated fat and cholesterol, we are likely to have high blood cholesterol.

Saturated fat is a kind of fat that is found mostly in foods that come from animals. Usually, you can see this fat on the food. Try to pick meats that have less fat, like round or low fat ground beef. Avoid the high fat meats like chuck, ribs, sausage and bacon.

You can reduce the amount of saturated fat you eat by cutting the fat off meat before cooking and throwing it away. If you are cooking ground beef, pour off the fat and rinse the cooked ground beef in hot water before using it in your recipe. Take both the skin and fat off of chicken, turkey, ducks and other birds before you cook them. When making soups, stews or gravies, cool them then skim the fat off the top.

Fat free milk gives you all the nutrition of whole milk without the cholesterol and saturated fat. It is easy to substitute dairy products made with fat free milk. Try frozen yogurt instead of ice cream; low fat, plain yogurt instead of sour cream; and cheeses made with fat free milk. Soft margarine or vegetable oil should be used instead of butter or lard.

Dietary cholesterol is found only in animal products. Egg yolks and organ meats are high in cholesterol and should only be eaten in small quantities. Limit yourself to no more than four egg yolks in one week. Egg substitutes are available that have no cholesterol. Because mayonnaise is made with eggs, it is high in cholesterol (as well as fat). Look for low fat or fat free mayonnaise, or skip the mayonnaise on sandwiches and use mustard instead.

It is easy to reduce the saturated fat and cholesterol that you consume! Instead of bacon and eggs for breakfast, try cereal with fat free milk and fruit. If you really can’t give up the bacon and eggs, try low-fat turkey bacon and scrambled eggs made from an egg substitute. Try oven bread instead of fry bread or eat fry bread on special occasions only. Instead of snacking on chips or French fries, eat an apple or a peach. Or, try the fat free chips or chips that are baked instead of fried. Many delicious foods do not have any cholesterol or saturated fat. These include fruits, vegetables, grains, and cereals.

When you make changes for yourself, you can also help your whole family by preparing foods that are lower in cholesterol and saturated fat. Everyone will reduce their risk for heart disease.

In this monthly column, I will be sharing other ways to lower your blood cholesterol. Also, you can call me at 335-4500 if you want more information about heart disease and how you can get involved to strengthen the heartbeat of our community.

CALL FOR VISUAL ARTISTS

“Artists of North Central Minnesota” Regional Brochure – 3rd Edition

The Arts Marketing Program of the Region 2 Arts Council is calling for visual artists from Beltrami, Clearwater, Hubbard, Lake of the Woods and Mahnomen Counties to apply for inclusion in the third “Artists of North Central Minnesota” brochure.

The brochure serves as a positive marketing tool for visual artists from Region 2. Marley Kaul, a widely respected and highly sought out visual artist from Bemidji says, “Being included in the Region 2 brochure of artists has resulted in studio visits and sales that would otherwise not have happened. This type of exposure to potential art buyers and museum curators is extremely helpful.” Jay Jones, a well-known visual artist from Popousky, remarked, “at a glance it represents the depth and diversity of artists in Northern Minnesota.”

Previous brochures have been welcome outside the region and provided the artists more opportunities for promotion of their work. Approximately 35 artists will be featured in the next brochure. We anticipate printing at least 3,000 brochures so the opportunity for many eyes to see the work of Northern Minnesota Artists is great!

If you are interested in applying for juried inclusion in the brochure, please call the Region 2 Arts Council at 218-751-5447 or 1-800-275-5447 or email R2AC at r2ac@paulbunyan.net to request guidelines and an application. The deadline for application is May 10, 2007. An entry fee of $20 must accompany your application.
