Leech Lake Band of Ojibwe Receives "Spirit of the People Award"

By Patsy Gordon

Leech Lake Tribal Chairman accepted the "Spirit of the People" statue that was awarded to the Leech Lake Band of Ojibwe at the annual MAICC Awards Banquet that was held at Mystic Lake Casino on December 7, 2007.

The award was given to Leech Lake for focusing upon and improving the life and environment of our people and for promoting and utilizing the gifts of individuals and organizations to enhance, heal, and strengthen our Indian community.

Chairman George Goggleye

commented, "Leech Lake is continually striving to improve the lives of our people and give priority consideration to Indian owned businesses when construction opportunities within the organization arise." He graciously thanked the Chamber for awarding this award to the Leech Lake Band of Ojibwe.

The Minnesota American Indian Chamber of Commerce exists to create an opportunity for American Indian entrepreneurs to gain economic parity, and to position community members and organizations as advocates for American Indian businesses.

Professional Elvis Impersonator Everett Atherton, who is a Fond du Lac Band Member, did a fantastic job providing the entertainment for the evening.

Domestic Violence Danger Signs & Awareness

By Patsy Gordon

The Leech Lake Tribal College hosted a Domestic Violence and Mental Health Awareness Workshop on November 16, 2007.

Although I was booked to cover two events that day, I believe I was lucky enough to have covered the most important part of the Domestic Violence workshop. Professor Janet Prater who teaches "Law Enforcement and Domestic Violence" at Bemidji State University spoke about the danger signs of domestic violence.

Although the majority of domestic violence cases do involve men battering their wives, girlfriends, and sometimes their children too, it is important to point out that there are women who batter their partners also. So for this article, I will most often refer to the male as the abuser.

You will often hear the question: why does a woman stay – for a variety of several different reasons. First, just let me admit, being a victim of domestic violence myself many years ago, I know first hand, that it is certainly not easy just to walk out of a violent relationship.

Healing in a violent relationship needs to have everyone in the relationship, i.e., husband, wife, kids, involved. An abuser tends to look at his partner and his kids like "pets that talk". He feels they are there for his bidding and to serve him. When an abuser tells his wife or partner, "I love you", what he's really saying is, "I want you to love me." A holistic approach (involving the entire family) is the only way to solve domestic violence.

Many domestic violence situations get to the point where a killing is involved, be it the abuser killing the abused, or the abused killing the abuser. When a killing is going to occur can never be predicted, but when a woman leaves she does put herself at higher risk and greater danger for being killed by her abuser. Let's not forget though, that women who stay in a violent relationship have died at the hands of their abuser also. Abusers feel that they are superior to the ones that they are abusing.

Professor Prater told us of an extreme example of a domestic violence case where a family had sat down at the table together for dinner. The family dog, that the children loved very much, was also in the room with them. The father asked one of his kids to get something for him. Thinking that his child did not act fast enough for him, he threw the dog upon the table and gutted it right there for all of them to watch. Then he said, "Next time, when I ask you to do something, maybe you'll move a little faster!" It's hard to imagine that there are people out there that are that cruel, and worse!

Abusers tend to be charming, amazing, helpful, just really full of good attributes when you first meet one. And very often, it's after marriage when the abuse will start. Professor Prater said she has heard this described as "quick-sand". Escalation of violence is a tremendous danger sign for killing. Like I said before, it is never easy to just get out.

Statistics show that it is usually the seventh time when an abused partner walks out on the abuser, is the time when the abused walks away for the last time – this time, they stay away.

The subject of domestic abuse is not just a "touch-on" subject. So Professor Prater's presentation and this article have been highly condensed for the sake of

Proud Grandparents

By Daniel LeClaire, Cass Lake Times

It's amazing sometimes what children can do.

That's what Marie Lovelace-Thunder and her husband Joe are finding out. Their granddaughter, Alita Todd, recently brought her bright, photogenic face to the front cover of the Target Corporation's employee magazine, Red.

"They heard about it on the East Coast," Joe said, amazed to hear from relatives who saw the magazine and the photo of their granddaughter and called to let them know.

Even at seven years old, though, Alita has been in front of the camera enough that making the cover of a nationally distributed magazine didn't take her grandparents completely by surprise. That's not to say that they don't cultivate a sense of delight at Alita's natural poise and grace.

"It seems amazing that she's doing stuff like this," Marie said holding the magazine at her kitchen table just west of Cass Lake. "I never gave it a second thought when she took her to her first (pageant)."

As a baby, Alita's mom, Anita Lovelace, entered Alita in a "most beautiful baby" contest—which she won. As she grew, Lovelace fashioned beautiful traditional dance regalia for her daughter.

Alita came to love dancing in front of the crowds at powwows. Later, she entered low-key pageants held by New Star Discovery.

"She became very comfortable in that environment, in front of a photographer," Joe said. He himself is a photographer with works on display in the Palace Casino. "(She's) not bashful at all to be in the public eye."

Now at seven years old, Alita is enrolled with two model and talent agencies and is building up her college fund."

"She makes more than us an hour combined," Joe quipped.

Being paid more than $100 an hour for her most recent job, Alita, with the help of her dad, Al Todd, and mom are putting that with her pageant winnings and investing it all in savings bonds.

"(Alita's parents) plan to leave them there until she grows up," Joe said.

Lovelace, who, with her mother, is an enrolled Leech Lake Band member, works as a bus driver for the Minneapolis Public Schools having graduated from Dunwoody College of Technology after studying auto mechanics. Todd, a painter by trade, works construction in the Cities.

"She does kinda' looks like her mom," Marie said considering Alita's photo. "But she gets her curly hair

Alita has three sisters as well, Leah, Sarah and Barbie, so sibling rivalry could be an issue. But at 30, 27 and 25 respectively, Marie said the three are more like aunties to their sister. One thing they do have in common is a flare for academics.

"She does real well in school," Marie said about Alita, commenting that all of the girls "were very involved in school."

Some would say that contests and pageants of the sort New Star Discovery puts on are exploitative and do a disservice to a child. The Cedar Rapids Forum has maintained a thread on their message board for 10 months with comments about a locally held New Star discovery pageant.

Judging from those responses, the overwhelming majority, most with first-hand knowledge of the pageants, feel the low-pressure, no make-up, everybody-gets-a-prize approach maintained by New Star only serves to boost kids' self esteem and build their confidence.

"She's so down to earth," Joe said, doing the things that many second-graders love to do, like having sleep-overs with her friends. A persistent grounding in her culture has helped Alita win prizes at pageants and kept her involved as a traditional dancer on the powwow trail.

"She doesn't compete," Marie said, commenting that the summer months, prime for powwows, are when she and Joe get to spend a lot of time with Alita. "She just enjoys dancing."

Marie, too, has found herself getting involved again in powwows. She just recently started to dance for the first time since she was little. Both she and her husband are retired now, Joe from the Navy and his years spent as an ironworker and in construction, Marie from nearly 31 years as the telecommunications coordinator at Bemidji State University.

Both are thankful to area businesses, mentioning especially Teal's, the Big Tap and the Leech Lake Band, for sponsoring Alita during her years in the pageants. Leroy and Betty Ellis of Leroy's Minnows fame also were always supportive of Alita.

"They always loved seeing her come in," Lovelace said about the Ellises and their business. "They always had balloons and candy for her."

These days Alita is the hostess at pageants for younger girls and auditions for advertising spots on billboards and television. She recently was called back as one of 10 finalists out of hundreds of entrants for a University of Minnesota T.V. commercial.

Wherever it might take her, though—and so far her modeling and her participation in pageants have taken her to neighboring states and as far way as Tennessee—Alita is destined to hold a special place in Marie and Joe's hearts.

"She's just grandma's and grandpa's little girl," Marie said. Joe shared one those delightful stories that grandparents hold dear to illustrate the beauty unfolding in their wake.

Some months ago, while Alita was sitting for a photo shoot, the photographer told her to "show some teeth," and her response was as natural as it was entertaining.

"I don't have any," she said. "They keep falling out and I don't know why."

time, but the following are signs to look for in a battering personality, jealousy, controlling behavior, quick involvement, unrealistic expectations, isolating the abuse, blaming others for his problems and/or feelings, hypersensitivity, cruelty to animals or children, "playful" use of force in sex, verbal abuse, rigid sex roles, Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde type personality, past battering, threats of violence, breaking or striking objects, and any force during an argument. The signs are not just limited to what was just mentioned. There are others too. Stalking is a tremendous danger signal.

It is important to recognize these signs and get the help that you need or to help a loved one that you feel or know is being battered.

Ban the Bug!

MDH News Release

Influenza season is just getting started in Minnesota, so it's not too late to get your flu vaccination. The Minnesota Department of Health and the Minnesota Coalition for Adult Immunization are promoting Ban the Bug Week, and effort to allow Minnesotans who have not yet been vaccinated against influenza to get vaccinated. Ban the Bug Catch-up Clinics will be offered throughout the metro area and at various locations statewide through December 2, 2007. Cost of the vaccination will vary by location. In all cases, participants should bring their Medicare and insurance cards to determine if their vaccination is free. And please wear short sleeves! Anyone who wants to avoid the flu should get vaccinated every year. Those who especially need to get a flu shot include people over 50 years of age, people who have a chronic health condition, live with or care for someone who has a chronic disease, women who will be pregnant during flu season, and health care workers. Remember, it's not too late to ban the bug! For more information or to find a clinic near you, visit www.mdhflu.com

Letter from the Editor:

Now that the Thanksgiving holiday is over, we are now looking at Christmas, right around the corner. The Debahjimon wishes each and everyone of it's readers a very joyous and merry Christmas, and a very prosperous New Year in 2008. Let us not forget the true meaning of Christmas during our hustle and bustle of this holiday season.

Many of you may notice that this issue of the Debahjimon is not its' usual 16 pages. Due to my computer crashing and being sent away to repair for a time during the month, it has become necessary to reduce the number of pages for this issue so I am able to get the newspaper out on time. This issue consists of 12 pages, 4 less than the normal publication. Next month's will resume again with the full 16 pages.

I would also like to encourage and remind those of you who are caring for our elderly and sick, to get them in for their flu shots and make sure you get yours yourself. It's still not to late.

Again, Merry Christmas and Happy New Year to you and yours.

Students From Low-Income Families Can Go To Harvard University Free

Harvard University recently announced that from now on undergraduate students from low-income families will pay no tuition.

In making the announcement, Harvard's president Lawrence H. Summers said, 'When only 10 percent of the students in Elite higher education come from families in lower half of the income distribution, we are not doing enough. We are not doing enough in bringing elite higher education to the lower half of the income distribution.'

If you know of a family earning less than $40,000 a year with an honor student graduating from high school soon, Harvard University wants to pay the tuition. The prestigious university recently announced that from now on undergraduate students from low-income families can go to Harvard for free...no tuition and no student loans!

Minnesota Holding Safe & Sober Campaign in December

The State of Minnesota is sponsoring a Safe & Sober Campaign in December aimed at apprehending drunk drivers.

The MN Department of Public Safety's Safe & Sober campaign will include about 400 law enforcement agencies.

To date, Minnesota traffic deaths are ahead of last year's pace, according to a press release from MN DPS.

In 2006, the state had 166 alcohol-related traffic deaths, the lowest number ever, but also had 41,832 DWI arrests, the press release stated.

In the Thief River Falls district, which includes Beltrami County, there were 28 impaired driving deaths and 3,575 DWIs between 2004 and 2006, according to the press release. The local economic impact of alcohol-related fatalities was estimated at more than $30.5 million.

In Minnesota, more than 500,395 motorists have a DWI record, the press release stated.

Safe & Sober is funded by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

Leech Lake Veterans Honored at Veteran's Powwow

Leech Lake Tribal College Alumni in the Spotlight

My name is Christine Fineday, I graduated from Leech Lake Tribal College in 1997 with an Associate of Arts Degree in Business; I then transferred to Bemidji State University and in 2002 obtained a Bachelor of Science Degree in Business Administration. My future plan is to pursue a Master's Degree.

My family includes my husband and two sons Glenn III (19) and Samuel Joseph (8). Even though I am not an enrolled member of the Leech Lake Band of Ojibwe I will always hold a special place in my heart for the Band; not only because my sons and immediate family are enrolled members, mostly because I am thankful for the opportunities of employment and education the Band has given me.

I currently work at Leech Lake Tribal College as the Registrar. I've been with the college for a total of seven years, starting out as Financial Aid Clerk back in 1996. The best part of my job is assisting the students, knowing that I was in their position at one time I attempt to fully explain what needs to be completed in order to succeed in college and reach their educational goals. As a graduate and employee, it's amazing to see the college grow into what it is today and I am thankful to all who have contributed to its success and, more importantly, its origin.

Before attending Leech Lake Tribal College I knew nothing of Native history, language or traditions; they do not teach that in public or boarding school. At LLTC, I learned that all of our Native ancestors were very intelligent people. They survived off the land; knew how to make medicine from the plants, they ate healthy food/were free of diseases, each tribe had their own language, they were very spiritual people, teachers of values and traditions, the list goes on. I think about the history of all Native people and honestly believe our ancestors are applauding because we can now protect ourselves, future generations, lands, language, traditions, rights, etc. and with something as simple as education.

I also believe everyone needs someone to inspire them to further their education; mine came from my grandfather. After graduating from boarding school I had absolutely no plans to go to college. One day while I was driving my grandparents to town, my grandpa told me that "the white man was progressing in a lot of ways, that he seen a lot being accomplished since he was young." He said to me, "Christine if you ever go out and get an education, you bring it back to the reservation so we can learn the way of the white man." All my life, I remembered his words. I am a first generation university graduate in my family; I told my oldest son what my grandpa told me long ago and how important an education is to yourself, your family and that of your people. That we need lawyers to fight for our rights and our land, we need native teachers who will teach/love our own children, we need native owned businesses on our reservations, the list goes on. I also stressed to him that a college degree does not make you better than anyone else it just means you have more responsibilities to do the right thing in whatever job you're in; and asked that he stay humble, I believe the happiest people are the most humble.

Heating & Cold Weather Rule Summary

- Despite what many individuals believe, utilities do have the right to disconnect a customer's heat if they are behind on their bill during the cold weather months (October-April).
- Minnesota law gives all customers the right to make a payment agreement with their utility during the cold weather months in order to ensure that their main source of heat will not be disconnected.
- Any customer who is having trouble paying their bills should contact their utility immediately to set up a payment agreement.
- Low-income families (those whose income is less than 50% of the state's median income) can receive additional protections from Minnesota's Cold Weather Rule.
- The federal and state governments have set aside funds to help low-income families that are having problems paying their heating bills. These funds are awarded by local organizations, but families need to apply quickly because these funds quickly run out.
- All rate regulated utilities must provide written notice to a customer at least seven days before the customer's heat is disconnected. Municipal utilities and energy co-ops must provide a written notice at least 15 days prior.
- Disconnections cannot occur on Fridays, weekends, day before a holiday or when the utilities offices are closed unless the field representative can enter into a payment agreement with the customer.
- All customers have the right to appeal to the PUC if their utility is going to disconnect their heat or if the customer and utility are not able to reach a payment agreement.
- All appeals must be resolved within 20 days, and a utility must provide heat to the customer while this appeal occurs.

Cold Weather Protection

Minnesota's Cold Weather Rule protects low-income individuals from having their main heating source disconnected during the cold weather months (October 15th-April 15th) if they make regular payments. This applies to all rate regulated utilities (Xcel Energy, CenterPoint Energy, Minnesota Power, Otter Tail Power and others), municipal utilities and cooperative electric associations. In order to receive this protection, customers must contact their utility company, establish a payment plan and make regular payments. Households who have an income that equals less than 50% of the median income (shown on page 9) can receive protection from Minnesota's Cold Weather Rule. Households that qualify for Cold Weather Rule can apply for an "Inability to Pay" status (available to customers whose bills were fully paid or reasonably on time as of October 15th and are willing to make a payment plan) or a "10% Plan" (available to customers whose bills were not fully paid or reasonably paid on time as of October 15th but agree to pay either 10% of their monthly household income or the full amount of their current bill, whichever is less). Additionally, if a qualifying household's heat was shut off prior to October 15th, the Cold Weather Rule ensures that their heat will be turned back on if they agree to pay the total amount they owe, plus their current energy bill, in monthly installments. These installments will not be more than 10% of their monthly income.

Heating Assistance

The federal and state governments have set funds aside for individuals who are having problems paying their heating bills. It is important that qualifying individuals apply for these grants as soon as possible, because these funds quickly run out.

The income qualifications to receive Energy Assistance Program funds are the same as for the Cold Weather Rule. Households with the lowest income and highest fuel costs receive the highest grants, and the size of a grant that a household receives is based on the household size, income, fuel type and energy usage. These funds can be used for:

- A Direct payment to an energy supplier;
- Consumer education regarding heating energy efficiently and safely;
- Help with energy suppliers and human service providers on behalf of consumers;
- Crisis help for utility disconnections or necessary fuel deliveries; and/or
- Emergency heating system repair or replacement.

The Minnesota Legislature also set up the Emergency Energy Assistance Fuel Fund which is available to households that equals up to 60% of the states median income. These funds are used to assist households who are ineligible for Energy Assistance or to provide additional help when Energy Assistance Funds are not enough to meet household's needs.

Both these programs are administered by local agencies. Customers can find the one for their area by calling 1-800-657-3710 or by going to <http://www.state.mn.us/portal/mn/jsp/content.do?programid=536884454&id=-536881374&agency=Commerce>.

Disconnection & Appeals Process

Before a utility company may turn off a customer's service during the winter months, it must send the following:

- A disconnection notice which states the date on or after which discontinuation will occur;
- A statement of customer's rights and responsibilities, including a list of the names and phone numbers of local energy, weatherization and conservation assistance providers;
- An explanation of no-cost or low-cost methods of conserving energy;
- A written explanation of how utility payments will be divided under the Ten Percent Plan if a customer has two or more utilities; and
- A Cold Weather Rule application.

All rate regulated utilities must wait ten days after the utility mails the notification or seven days after the utility personally serves the customer before disconnecting a customer's heat. Municipal utilities or cooperative energy associations must wait for 20 days after a notice is mailed or 15 days after a notice is personally delivered.

Additionally, utilities cannot disconnect customers on a Friday, weekend, or day before a holiday or when the utility's offices are close unless the field representative is authorized to accept a payment or make a payment agreement with the customer. If the customer does not respond to the notice, all utilities must attempt to determine if the residence is occupied by visiting the home.

All customers have the right to appeal to the Public Utilities Commission if their utility notifies them that it is going to disconnect their heat or if the customer and utility cannot reach a payment plan agreement. The utility is required to provide an appeals form to the customer when they notify them of the utilities decision, and the customer must submit the form to the PUC within ten days of receiving the notice in the mail or seven days of being personally served the notice. Their utility cannot disconnect their heat until the appeals process is completed. The PUC must examine all appeals in an informal manner within 20 days of receiving the appeals form. A customer's energy must remain connected while this appeals process occurs and the customer must be reconnected if they had previously been disconnected.
