At every quarterly meeting of the Leech Lake Tribal Council, Chairman George Goggleye, Jr., reports on the latest issues of dire importance to the constituents of the Leech Lake Band of Ojibwe.

One issue of key importance to the Leech Lake Band is the Nelson Act Settlement. Chairman Goggleye updated the audience on the status of the Nelson Act Settlement at the last quarterly meeting that was held on Friday, October 5, 2007 at the Northern Lights Casino in Walker, Minnesota.

The following is a brief synopsis of the details of the Nelson Act.

On January 22, 1948 the Minnesota Chippewa Tribe, representing all Chippewa Bands in Minnesota, except for the Red Lake Band, filed a claim before the Indian Claims Commission for an accounting of all funds received and expended pursuant to the Act of January 14, 1889, referred to as the Nelson Act.

On August 2, 1951, the Minnesota Chippewa Tribe again filed a number of claims before the Indian Claims Commission for an accounting of the Government's obligation to each of the member bands of the Minnesota Chippewa Tribe, except for the Red Lake Band, under various statutes and treaties that are not covered by the Nelson Act of January 14, 1889.

Hartley White, former Leech Lake Tribal Council Chairman, who was instrumental in making the Bug-O-Nay-Ge-Shig School a reality, accepts his gifts of honor from students at the school. Gerald White (standing) emceed the event. Photo by Patsy Gordon

Eighty two year old, Leech Lake elder, Hartley White, who is wheel chair bound, still hasn’t lost that sense of humor that he is quite well known for. He says, “There were three great men born in February, George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, and Hartley White!”

The elderly Leech Lake man has always been a jovial, jolly old fella’. He was honored at the Bug-O-Nay-Ge-Shig School on October 17, 2007 for his part he played in bringing the school to reality and to fruition.

It all started back in 1975 when Hartley was the Cass Lake Teen Center Director. Students from the Cass Lake/Bena schools walked out of class because of poor treatment they were receiving there. Hartley was instrumental in getting classes started at the Teen Center so students could attend class there. From that moment on, Hartley, who had a tender spot in his heart for our Native kids, played a major role in making the Bug-O-Nay-Ge-Shig School into what it is today. At first a small school was built out by the area what is called “The Plantation”. Students attended school there before funding was secured to build a much larger school at the location where it is now. From what started out as a small group of Native kids attending school at Bug-O-Nay-Ge-Shig, it now has over 200 students who attend there. Hartley says, “It’s a wonderful thing, our kids are being taught the Ojibwe language and culture as well as modern day studies.” He wanted to point out “I had a lot of help, it wasn’t only I alone. Ed Demery, Dick Wolf and Mike Schmid all played a major role in bringing the school into existence.” Hartley also credits Congressman Jim Oberstar as getting funding for the school as one of his priorities. Hartley considers the accomplishment of getting the Reservation their own Tribal school as one of his biggest accomplishments.

The current School Board and administration are now working on obtaining funding to expand the existing school.

Ninety-Six Groups Receive U.S. Labor Department’s First YouthBuild Awards
$535,480 dedicated to Leech Lake Band of Ojibwe

SECRETARY OF LABOR ELAINE L. CHAO today announced the award of $47 million to 96 groups that will provide education in construction and as well as leadership training to at-risk young people across the United States, who will take part in building affordable housing in their own communities. Leech Lake Band of Ojibwe, one of the award-winning organizations from hundreds of competitively screened proposals, will receive $535,480.

“These $47 million in YouthBuild awards will help at-risk youths get the education, training and opportunity they need to achieve a better life,” said Secretary Chao.

YouthBuild will include individuals who have been in the juvenile justice system, young people aging out of foster care, high school dropouts and others.

“Young people in YouthBuild can take pride in the fact that they are not only improving their own lives, but also making a positive difference for their families, friends and neighbors,” said Assistant Secretary of Labor for Employment and Training Emily Stover DeRocco. “Their participation in this creative program will help them take the first steps toward a variety of rewarding educational opportunities and careers.”

Today’s awards are the result of a competition begun in April, during which 322 qualified applications were received. Organizations chosen for YouthBuild funding include workforce investment boards, faith-based and community groups, and local and nonprofit housing development agencies.

With broad support, Congress transferred YouthBuild from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to the U.S. Department of Labor in 2006. The program’s original goals remain - to educate, provide construction training and employ at-risk youth in their communities - while a greater emphasis is being placed on offering postsecondary education and forging stronger links with the One-Stop Career Center system and the nation’s community colleges.

Four Johnson Brother Veterans will be Honored at Memorial Event

The family of the Johnson Brothers plan to honor their brave uncles, present family veterans and all veterans in a memorial and honoring ceremony at Winnie Dam Community Center on Saturday, November 10, 2007. All family members are invited to attend this historic gathering to pay homage to these 4 brave brothers.

The brothers joined the U.S. armed forces, one of whom, was killed in action. The parents of the brothers died when they were quite small, and the boys were raised by their sister and brother-in-law, (the late) Kate Johnson Sherman and Tom Sherman of Winnie Dam. Richard Johnson was killed in action in WWII on June 5, 1944 in Italy. James Johnson served during World War II in the South Pacific. Samuel Johnson also served during World War II in the army as a Fighter Pilot. George Johnson, World War II, Army, was captured by the enemy, was held “Prisoner of War” and was forced to walk in the “death march”. The foregoing information was reported in The Deer River News on September 21, 1944.

The focus of the upcoming ceremony will be to raise awareness of the service and sacrifice that these 4 brothers, and all veterans made, and to establish a memorial legacy for them so that this family veterans memorial will continue on for generations. “Our uncles and other veterans gave their lives and limbs so we could live.” “aangwaamas, (it’s about time) we recognize their status of honor and pay true homage to their service, sacrifice and memory”, exclaimed Elizabeth Sherman (maternal niece of the Johnson brothers) one of the family organizers of this memorial event.

For more information, contact Elizabeth at (218) 339-5230 or Frank Sherman at (218) 246-2388.

Presumption of Agent Orange Exposure for Vietnam Veterans

Recently, there have been questions about how to handle Agent Orange exposure for veterans who served in Vietnam but who check “NO” on their Application for Medical Benefits, Section IV, Military Service Information, question 2g. “Were you exposed to Agent Orange while serving in Vietnam?”

VHA policy is that veterans with service in Vietnam qualify to claim Agent Orange exposure, and they are placed in Priority Group 6. Therefore, those Vietnam veterans that meet the service location requirement to claim Agent Orange Exposure qualify for the full Medical Benefits Package. These individuals should not be rejected and should not be denied care.

VA presumes that a veteran who served in the Republic of Vietnam during the period of January 9, 1962 and ending on May 7, 1975 was possibly exposed to Agent Orange.

Service locations that qualify a veteran to claim Agent Orange Exposure and assignment of Enrollment Priority Group 6 has recently been expanded to include service “off the shores” of Vietnam. “Service in the Republic of Vietnam” is qualifying if the veteran had duty or visitation in the Republic of Vietnam as well as service on the inland waterways of the Republic of Vietnam. A recent court decision mandates we consider veterans that served off the shores of Vietnam, referred to as serving in “Blue Waters” around Vietnam, be given the same consideration as veterans that served in country. Therefore, for VHA enrollment purposes, if a veteran claims Vietnam service and presents evident that they served in country, on the inland waterways, visitation to the country or service off shore (Blue Water Service), they will be entered as Agent Orange Exposure “Yes” and placed in Priority Group 6 unless they have attributes that place them in higher Priority Group.

If the veterans has marked “NO” to the AO exposure question on their Application for Medical Benefits but actually has qualifying service in Vietnam, we should indicate exposure to Agent Orange in VistA. It is unreasonable for us to expect every veteran to be fully informed of VA eligibility requirements. While they may be exposed to the question on the application based on their perception that they were not exposed, VA’s current policy in this matter gives them the benefit of the doubt. In such circumstances, we should follow VA’s standards for administering benefits by erring on the side of the veteran. While it is true that the Agent Orange exposure question in the VistA record may differ from the paper Application for Medical Benefits (10-10EZ) submitted and signed by the veteran, answering “Yes” to the Agent Orange exposure question in VistA is currently the only way to assure assignment to Priority 6. Remember, we are granting Priority Group 6 eligibility on presumptive exposure based on qualifying service in Vietnam, not the veteran’s perception of exposure.

Minnesota’s Waiting Children Need You.

Minnesota’s Waiting Children are in the foster care system throughout the State of Minnesota. County social service agencies and the courts have determined that the families into which these children were born are unable to care for them. Parental rights have been terminated, placing the children under state guardianship. Children in this program can be between the ages of newborn to 18 years old; however, most are over the age of six. Many are also members of a sibling group or have significant special needs. Of the more than 690 children who need homes immediately:

- Slightly less than 300 have a diagnosis of a physical or medical disability,
- More than 400 are a member of a sibling group and need to be adopted in a family together,
- Almost 400 are children of color.
- More than 500 are over five years of age.

What they have in common is the desire to be part of a forever family.

These Minnesota Waiting Children may be adopted FREE. North Homes, Inc., in coordination with the Minnesota Adoption Resource Network (MARN), will be hosting a FREE training for anyone interested in adopting Minnesota Waiting Children. This two-day mandatory training will be held in Grand Rapids on Thursday, November 15, and Friday, November 16 at 9:00 a.m. til 5:00 p.m. both days.

beneficiaries of the funds awarded. In short, the Leech Lake Band of Ojibwe afforded the biggest loss of their timber of sales to private corporations, etc., amongst all Bands belonging to the Minnesota Chippewa Tribe, over 68% of the Leech Lake Band’s timber was sold.

It is the opinion of the Leech Lake Tribal Council and the Leech Lake Band of Ojibwe that Leech Lake should rightfully benefit its deserved share from that claim.

However, Congressman Jim Oberstar has introduced a bill into Congress to split the funds into a 6 way even split amongst the Grand Portage, Nett Lake, Fond du Lac, Mille Lacs, White Earth, and the Leech Lake Bands of Ojibwe.

The Leech Lake Tribal Council will continue to work with Oberstar’s office to openly and adamantly continue to oppose this bill brought forth by him and let the Congressman know Leech Lake’s stand.
High School Teachers Class Commemorates the Last Battle At Sugar Point on its 109th Anniversary
By Patsy Gordon

It was a windy and cool day by the lake. But the sun was shining as the kids from the Bug-O-Nay-Ge-Shig School joyfully joked around with each other as the first bus load of students built the fire they were going to use to finish their wild rice.

Standing next to the young boys, I couldn’t help but overhear their conversation. They made me smile as I listened to their chatter. One of the boys said, “I told you, I’m not gonna’ have a car, I’m going to have either a horse and carriage or an ostrich!” One of the other boys, Gabe Haaland, said back to him, “I’m telling you, nobody rides ostriches anymore!”

Gabe had been digging out the ground for the fire pit as he startlingly exclaimed, “There’s a dog in here!” There really wasn’t. I kept laughing as the Indian humor continued amongst the students throughout the morning.

As many of you may know, on October 5, 1898, the last armed conflict in the war between the White Man and the Native Americans (what some say) was a three-day battle at Sugar Point, now known as Battle Point, which lies on the east end of northern Minnesota’s Leech Lake.

Although there is no way to go back and do an accurate census of that time period and of the battle, different versions of the last battle at Battle Point exist. No one really knows for sure exactly what happened. One version of the story of the battle is written to the left of this article. Although this article claims that Bug-O-Nay-Ge-Shig was the one person who the US Marshals were hoping could help them out with information on who was selling illegal liquor, another version claims that Bug-O-Nay-Ge-Shig himself, was the person responsible for the bootlegging.

Mike Schmid, who teaches American History, (he also includes Ojibwe History in his class) at both the Bug-O-Nay-Ge-Shig School and Cass Lake/Beau School makes it his ritual to take his students out to Battle Point every year on the anniversary of the Last Battle at Sugar Point to commemorate the day. Although Schmid is not Native American by blood, he was officially adopted into the Leech Lake Band of Ojibwe in May of 2006. Schmid has made it his life to work with the Native American students on the Leech Lake Reservation and no one is more deserving of the official adoption than him.

Leech Lake elder, Bug-O-Nay-Ge-Shig School employee, and spiritual leader, Gilbert Moose was there to speak with the students and offer his prayers for the event and the day. The tobacco offering that was given to the students and everyone else in attendance was given to the fire at the end of Moose’s Ojibwe prayer.

With this day and event every year comes a demonstration supervised by Moose, where all the students actually get to take part in hand finishing wild rice. First, he teaches them how to parch the rice by stirring the rice in a large tub over the open fire. This takes approximately 10 to 15 minutes to do. Next, the student’s winnow or fan the rice by shaking it up and down so everything but the wild rice blows out of the birch bark basket. The third and final step is the jigging or thrashing of the rice, where the thrasher puts on a pair of moccasins and works the rice with his/her feet to break apart the wild rice from the remaining dead ends, then again the rice is winnowed to remove the unwanted left overs from the rice. The whole process of hand finishing the wild rice from start to finish takes approximately 3 to 4 hours.

The students impressed me with their respect and quiet solitude while the elder prayed and taught them the process of hand finishing the wild rice.

Next year, Schmid and Moose will do it again.

"Famous Battle of Sugar Point Begins by Accident"

This article is believed to have come from a book at the Minnesota Historical Society.

“Once called the Blueberry War, Minnesota’s last Indian battle had nothing to do with blueberries. In fact, it could hardly be called war. What started as a routine incident ended with a careless slip of a gun and wild rumors of Indian attacks on such towns as Walker, Cass Lake and Bemidji.

It was the fall of 1898. Federal agents had been looking for Chief Bug-O-Nay-Ge-Shig, of the Pillager Band of the Ojibwe, who lived on Sugar Point at Leech Lake. A man was suspected of illegally selling whiskey and it was hoped that Bug-O-Nay-Ge-Shig could provide information to help send him to jail.

Bug-O-Nay-Ge-Shig refused to cooperate. At least once before they had made him make the long trip by train to a Duluth courtroom, only to have him walk home through the freezing forests when he was finished. This time he would not leave his people.

Instead he remained on Sugar Point, venturing out only occasionally. September 15th was such a day, and he crossed Leech Lake to visit the Indian Agency in Onigum. Guessing he was on his way, a deputy United States Marshall was waiting. When he arrived, he was promptly arrested and handcuffed.

His capture didn’t last long, however. Within minutes, 50 or so young members of the Bear Island Pillager Band and Sugar Point, the Marshall would not admit defeat.

Warrants were issued for the arrest of 22 participants in the escape. To assist the deputies in their duty, the War Department in Washington sent 20 men on September 30, and a reinforcement of 80 individual soldiers on October 4th. Brigadier General John Bacon, Major Melville Wilkinson and other officers were in command.

At day break on October 5th, 1898, two small steamers and a barge left the town of Walker, carrying the soldiers across to Sugar Point. They landed a few hours later, to find only women and a half dozen older men who quickly fled into the surrounding woods. Disappointed, the soldiers halted and prepared a noon meal in a forest clearing. As they began stacking their guns, one rifle slipped to the ground and fired.

Believing that they had been fired upon, dozens of Ojibwe in the forest fired back, thus starting the famous Battle of Sugar Point. When the firing ended, several soldiers lay dead, including Major Wilkinson. More were wounded, but the Ojibwe were unharmed.

Fearing even greater trouble, General Bacon retreated to Walker on October 7, and began fortifying area villages and farms. Soldiers camped at the Leech Lake and Winnibigoshish Dams, at local Great Northern Railway stations, and at Deer River and Cass Lake.

The Ojibwe, however, had no plans to attack. Instead they met Commissioner of Indian Affairs, W.A. Jones in council meetings during the next few days. All parties finally agreed the incident was unfortunate and the Indians involved consented to surrender.

Bug-O-Nay-Ge-Shig was not among those who accompanied the deputy marshall to Duluth, however. He preferred his freedom and no one continued the search.

Those of the Pillager Band who turned themselves over to officials were found guilty and sent to jail. But on January 3, 1899, President William McKinley in Washington issued full pardons and allowed them to return home.

This marked the end of the last Indian battle in Minnesota.

INDIAN WINTER

It was already late fall and the Indians on a remote reservation in South Dakota asked their new chief if the coming winter was going to be cold or mild.

Since he was a chief in a modern society he had never been taught the old secrets. When he looked at the sky he couldn’t tell what the winter was going to be like.

Nevertheless, to be on the safe side, he told his Tribe that the winter was indeed going to be cold and that the members of the Village should collect firewood to be prepared.

But being a practical leader, after several days he had an idea. He went to the phone booth, called the National Weather Service and asked “Is the coming winter going to be cold?”

‘It looks like this winter is going to be quite cold,’ the meteorologist from the National Weather Service responded.

So the Chief went back to his people and told them to collect even more firewood in order to be prepared.

A week later he called the National Weather Service again. ‘Does it still look like it is going to be a very cold winter?’

‘Absolutely,’ the man at National Weather Service again replied, ‘It’s going to be a very cold winter!’

The Chief again went back to his people and ordered them to collect every scrap of firewood they could find.

Two weeks later the Chief called the National Weather Service again. ‘Are you absolutely sure that the winter is going to be very cold?’

‘Absolutely,’ the man replied. ‘It’s looking more and more like it is going to be one of the coldest winters we’ve ever seen.’

‘How can you be so sure?’ the Chief asked.

The weatherman replied, ‘The Indians are collecting firewood like crazy.’

Sturgeon Return to Red Lake

Ten thousand small, but a potentially very large primitive fish known as sturgeon, were reintroduced to Red Lake on Monday October 1st. Employees of the Red Lake DNR and US Fish and Wildlife Department released the five to six inch sturgeon at a landing on the southeast shore near where the Blackduck River enters Lower Red Lake. Tobacco was offered at the site by Spiritual Elder and Hereditary Chief Greeting Spears.

According to Red Lake DNR Director Al Pemberton, the sturgeon eggs came from the Manitou Rapids First Nation in Canada. “The eggs taken from the Rainy River, were procured and raised by the US Fish and Wildlife Genoa Fish Hatchery in Wisconsin,” said Pemberton. There they were fed brine shrimp at first, then bloodworm, and finally krill to reach their release size.

“Sturgeon were indigenous to Red Lake until the 1940’s when the US Government, administered by the Army Corp of Engineers, placed a dam on the Red Lake River preventing the sturgeon from entering their traditional spawning area”, said Red Lake DNR Administrative Officer Dave Conner, “although other issues contributed as well.” It is hoped that by releasing the 5 to 6 inch sturgeon into the Blackduck River that they will return there to spawn. “But it won’t be for a long time”, said Conner, “as sturgeon females take up to 20 years to mature and reproduce, although they should grow fast doubling in size by next summer”. It is believed the sturgeon will acclimate well to the Blackduck River where there is considerable suitable habitat.

The last official sighting of sturgeon in Red Lake was by the Red Lake fisheries in 1943, but sightings were reported by fishermen into the early 1950’s. “Sturgeon were important culturally to our ancestors”, said Pemberton, “as they not only provided meat but lamp oil, and of course the large fish - not much more difficult to catch than a smaller fish - fed many more people”. Sturgeon dries and smokes well and therefore was easy to store, Pemberton added.

According to Conner, funding for the reintroduction of the fish was provided by the Tribal Wildlife Grant Program, a program that the Red Lake DNR lobbied for and was instrumental in getting created. He said that money for the Tribal Wildlife funds comes from taxes on off-shore oil well drilling, a percentage of that tax going to the fund.

Sturgeon can reach four to six feet long, and weigh 100 to 150 pounds. Their natural life can reach 80 to 100 years. They are an ancient or primitive fish such as sharks and rays, and do not have a skeleton as most animals. The sturgeon has cartilage serving as an outer or exoskeleton. These “living fossils” of fish evolution once ranged widely throughout the Mississippi River, the Great Lakes and the Hudson River as well as Red Lake.

In the last century, this large, bony-plated animal, browsing along the bottom, was often regarded as a nuisance because it became entangled in and ripped commercial fishing nets. Only later did the sturgeon become prized for its meat, eggs (caviar) and oil. A gelatin from the inner lining of its air bladder was used to make isinglass--a substance used as a clarifying agent in jellies, glues and in the isinglass windows of carriages and early cars.

Unfortunately, the sturgeon was exceptionally vulnerable to over fishing, largely because of its slow reproductive cycle. The female requires more than 20 years to mature, and then it spawns only every four to six years during its lifespan.

At the landing, the Blackduck River welcomed the sturgeon, and the sturgeon showed their happiness at finally being released from stainless steel tanks that must have been getting quite crowded with their 10,000 brothers and sisters. As one watched from the landing, one could see many of these small primitive fish gleefully jumping out of the water over and over on a warm sunny October day. Free at last and happy to be home.

Northwest Indian OIC/NW Technical College Receive Grant

The Northwest Indian Opportunities Industrialization Center (Northwest Indian OIC) and Northwest Technical College will continue to provide customized training for students entering the health care profession thanks to a two-year continuation grant of $198,000.00 from the Minnesota Job Skills Partnership, a division of Minnesota’s Department of Employment and Economic Development (DEED).

The collaboration between the Minnesota Job Skills Partnership, Northwest Indian OIC, Northwest Technical College, and area businesses, including North Country Regional Hospital and North Country Health Services supports an innovative training process that helps NWIOIC clients develop the skills they need to obtain entry level career-building jobs as Community Nursing Assistants and contribute to community development in the areas in which they live. In the first two years of funding 90 Northwest Indian OIC clients completed the program. Of the 90, eighty entered employment in the health care field upon completion of the program; five students continued their education by entering the Northwest Technical College Licensed Practical Nursing Program, and two others found employment in other fields.

Northwest Indian OIC Chief Executive Officer, Mike Bongo, noted at a grant signing ceremony at the Northwest Technical College on October 17, 2007, that for every grant dollar spent to provide the CNA and related training services, clients return over $28 to our communities through increased wages and savings to the taxpayers. In his remarks, he thanks the many individuals and organizations that had helped to make the partnership successful including the Nielson Foundation who provided $25,000 to initiate the process in 2005 and Paul Moe, Director of the Minnesota Job Skills Partnership, for his leadership in bringing technical, financial and job training assistance to businesses and education institutions in rural Minnesota.

Northwest Indian OIC is a tax-exempt, nonprofit, American Indian-controlled provider of employment and training programs. The Northwest Indian OIC partners with government agencies, tribes, employers, training providers and other like-minded organizations to provide a broad range of services to socially and economically disadvantaged youth and adults. Northwest Indian OIC is one of 65 national affiliate organizations of OIC of America and one of five OIC programs operating in Minnesota.
Five Things to Tell Your Friends About Breast Cancer

October was Breast Cancer Awareness Month, but anytime is the right time to learn the facts about breast cancer and how to detect it early, when it is easiest to treat.

1. All women are at risk for breast cancer, even those who have no family history of the disease.

2. The two greatest risk factors for breast cancer are being a woman and growing older.

3. Survival rates are high for women diagnosed with an early stage breast cancer, when the cancer is small and has not spread. Get regular mammograms beginning at age 40, and start clinical breast exams by a health professional at age 20. Although it is optional, monthly breast self-examinations are also recommended.

4. Smart strategies to reduce your risk of breast cancer include regular physical activity, maintaining a healthy weight, and limiting alcohol intake.

5. As women are becoming more educated about breast cancer, death rates for the disease are dropping.

Tell your female friends, family members – any woman you care about. You could save a life.

For more information about breast cancer, or to find out how you can help in the fight against cancer, contact the American Cancer Society at 1-800-ACS-2345 or visit www.cancer.org.

Stephanie Masten, Cass Lake/Bena Middle School High-Achiever Selected for State Leadership Conference

National Young Leaders State Conference in the Great Lakes Region Honoring Area’s Most Highly-Acclaimed Students to be Held This Fall.

This fall, Cass Lake/Bena middle school student, Miss Stephanie Masten, will join a very select group of some of the most highly-acclaimed students in the Great Lakes Region to take part in an extraordinary leadership conference sponsored by the Congressional Youth Leadership Council (CYLC).

The National Young Leaders State Conference (NYLSC) in the Great Lakes Region honors and recognizes outstanding middle school students for their scholastic achievement and leadership potential. Enrollment requirements to attend the Conference are strict, mandating that every scholar who attends must be personally nominated to attend by a teacher or selected based upon extraordinary academic achievement. Miss Masten was nominated for NYLSC by Ms. Trisha Cherney of Cass Lake Bena Middle School.

“The aim of NYLSC is to inspire students to recognize their own leadership skills, measure their skills against those of their peers and return home with newfound confidence in their ability to serve as future leaders,” said Michael Lasday, Executive Director of CYLC.

The intense four-day curriculum focuses on eight core leadership power tools: communication, conflict resolution, decision making, goal setting, group dynamics, leadership techniques, project management and self-awareness. With the insight and guidance of highly trained facilitators and the assistance of their peers, scholars work within each activity to hone their plan of personal leadership.

CYLC is an educational organization dedicated to identifying and nurturing leadership in the nation’s highest-achieving students. Since 1985, the Council has inspired more than 200,000 young people to achieve their full leadership potential. Currently, close to 400 members of the U.S. Congress serve on the CYLC Honorary Congressional Board of Advisors and more than 50 embassies participate in the Council’s Honorary Board of Embassies.

When I Must Leave You
For a Little While

When I must leave you for a little while,
Please do not grieve and shed wild tears
And hug your sorrow to you through the years,
But start out bravely with a gallant smile.
And for my sake and in my name, Live on and do all the things the same.
Feed not on your loneliness and empty days,
But fill each working hour in useful ways.
Reach out your hand in comfort and cheer
And in turn I will comfort you and hold you near.
And never, never be afraid to die,
For I am waiting for you in the sky!
