St. Paul — Indian Mounds Park in St. Paul has been long regarded as a recreational site, but will now feature entrance signage letting visitors know the park is a burial site for Minnesotan tribes.

The recognition from city officials and community members comes after the St. Paul Parks and Recreation Department planned to build a splash pad at the park — plans that were canceled following pushback from local Indigenous groups who had ancestors buried at the site.

The park was established in 1892 for the purpose of preserving the area, although, “connections of contemporaneous Indigenous Peoples to the sacred site were not understood, considered, or valued,” according to the park’s website. In the late 1880s, at least 50 mounds existed in the East and West areas of the park. Six above-ground mounds remain in the eastern section.

To further address concerns regarding preservation of these burial sites, a cultural landscape study has been ordered to better understand what needs to be protected in the area. The study involves looking at the history of Indian Mounds Park and using technology to scan for burial mounds and remains.

The city reallocated the $400,000 grant originally intended for the splash-pad project to pay for the signs and the study. So far, $90,000 has gone toward the signs and $280,000 toward the study.

The remaining money will go toward other projects in the park that Indigenous groups have asked for, such as a gathering circle and more signs. The existing kids’ play area will eventually be decommissioned and Indian Mounds Park will move away from the traditional parks and recreation model.

Indian Mounds park is located at 10 Mounds Blvd. Saint Paul, MN 55106, and is open to community members Mon-Fri: 7:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.

BEMIDJI – The Bemidji Watermark Art Center has a new exhibit in the Miikinaan gallery.

The Miikinaan gallery which is home to the center’s Traditional art exhibits is now proudly displaying "Dakobijige, "She Ties Things Together."

Dakobijige, features the work of Fon Du Lac textile artist, Maggie Thompson. Thompson uses her art as a way of storytelling, sharing what it means to be a contemporary Native Woman through textiles, multimedia elements and unconventional materials. In this particular exhibit Thompson explores the themes of connection to one’s body in regards to place and relationships with others.

“I am interested in how our intuitive knowledge physically affects us through changing conditions within our body. Relating to physical, emotional and psychological health these assemblage works touch on my personal experiences with love, loss, abuse and home. I use textiles as a way to contain memory, to reflect, and to tell a difficult story,” says Thompson.

Thompson had her first solo exhibition “Where I Fit” at All My Relations Gallery in 2014 and has since exhibited at institutions such as the Minneapolis Institute of Art and the Plains Art Museum. In 2015, she received support from the Minnesota State Arts Board Cultural Community Partnership Grant and the Native Arts and Cultures Foundation Regional Fellowship to create a body of work for her exhibit “On Borrowed Time” at the Minnesota Textile Center. The Minneapolis Institute of Art and the Minnesota Historical Society have both acquired pieces from Thompson to be a part of their permanent collection.

In addition to her fine arts practice, Thompson runs a small knit-wear business known as Makwa Studio and is also an emerging curator of contemporary Native art and has worked on curating special exhibits for Two Rivers Gallery, the McKnight Foundation and the Minnesota Museum of American Art.

The Dakobijige exhibit will be on display at Watermark until October 29, 2021.
New Bemidji State Grant Program Supports Indigenous Representation in Psychology

Submitted by Rachel Munson

BEMIDJI – The Bemidji State University Department of Psychology recently received a one-year, $9,981 Minnesota State Colleges and Universities Educational Innovations Grant to launch a scholarship program for Indigenous students studying psychology.

With a pilot cohort of six students, the Indigenous Students in Psychology Training (InPsyT, pronounced like “insight”) program will train and prepare American Indian students for careers in psychology through mentorships with Indigenous psychologists and mental health professionals.

In addition to receiving a $500 scholarship, cohort members will explore psychology and behavioral health topics as they pertain to American Indian populations, receive training on Indigenous research methodologies and attend the annual Society of Indian Psychologists conference.

Program co-founder Dr. John Gonzalez ’99, BSU alum and professor of psychology, says the InPsyT program will not only benefit Indigenous students, but will also provide him the opportunity to give back to the next generation of American Indian psychologists.

“I feel like I am coming full circle in my career having started here at BSU as a psychology major,” he said. “I wouldn’t be back here without my mentor Dr. Russ Bennett, professor emeritus of psychology; I wouldn’t have my PhD without a program like this at my graduate school; I wouldn’t have been able to accomplish so many things in my career without others supporting me and providing me with guidance, mentorship and opportunities. It is a real honor to have this chance to give back in this way.”

This fall, the cohort’s activities will include bi-weekly luncheons with psychology faculty and feature campus-wide lectures with American Indian professionals in psychology. At the inaugural cohort meeting, Sheline Head, a junior psychology student from Bemidji, shared how supported she feels by the professors in the InPsyT program.

“It’s really empowering having that support system,” Head said. “I feel that I can accomplish so much more now within this area of expertise with them working with me.”

Similarly, Whitney Spears, a senior from Redby, Minnesota, double majoring in psychology and Indigenous sustainability echoed Head’s statements.

“Having the support of the faculty in this program is really helpful, especially as a first generation student,” she said.

Looking forward, Dr. Sarah Cronin, InPsyT co-founder and assistant professor of psychology, says the mentor opportunities for InPsyT students will allow Bemidji State to expand its impact on the psychologists of the future.

“The professional networking and learning that can occur with those opportunities can be a great inspiration for InPsyT students and their budding careers in psychology,” she said. “Programs like this can provide culturally relevant training that is too often omitted from psychology training programs and I am grateful for the opportunity to serve BSU in its mission to become a destination university for Native American students.”

The InPsyT program will also assist students develop post-graduate plans and the faculty is already helping the cohort look for future careers, Spears said.

“I’m really excited about gaining all of the resources that I’ll need to graduate school,” Spears said.

“Having this program guide my way to grad school is really helpful.”

The first event of the program’s speaker series welcomes Dr. Joseph P. Gone, professor of anthropology and of global health and social medicine at Harvard University. Gone’s Zoom lecture “American Indian Historical Trauma: Retrospects and Prospects” will be held from 2-3:30 p.m. on Sept. 15 in Haggg-Sauer Hall 150. Attendees may also attend the event virtually.

“I am excited for our InPsyT speaker series where students will learn about important topics, relevant to their career goals in psychology, from professionals they can identify with,” Dr. Angela Fournier, professor of psychology and program co-founder, said. “The speaker series is open to everyone, providing an opportunity for learning and growth across campus.”

Cohort members must be a declared psychology major, have a minimum 3.0 GPA and be an enrolled member or descendent of an American Indian tribe. Though the grant funds a single InPsyT cohort, Cronin, Gonzalez and Fournier anticipate securing additional funding to continue the program.

CASS LAKE – The Leech Lake Band of Ojibwe (LLBO) Division of Resource Management issued public notice today that Manoomin (wild rice) waters within the exterior boundaries of the Leech Lake Reservation will be closed to hunters participating in the MN DNR’s early teal and goose seasons.

The new early teal season, which is experimental and could last up to three years, is open from September 4-8, 2021. The State’s Early Goose Season also opens on September 4. These dates overlap with the traditional Manoomin harvesting season taking place throughout Northern Minnesota.

“With peak rice season taking place now and lasting for the next few weeks, our Natural Resources Advisory Council and the LLBO Tribal Council, agreed that the safest course of action is to close the wild rice beds to hunters taking part in the experimental early waterfowl hunting season,” said Ben Benoit, LLBO Environmental Director. “While these closures only affect rice beds within the Leech Lake Reservation, we encourage hunters to exercise extreme caution throughout the 1855 Treaty Territory where many of our people will be gathering rice throughout the weekend.”

Leech Lake Reservation waters containing wild rice beds will open to all hunters on the State’s regular season opening date on September 25, 2021.

The public notice, Leech Lake Reservation Business Council resolution and map of affected waters is available on the Leech Lake Division of Resource Management website at https://www.llojibwe.org/ldr.

PUBLIC NOTICE:

EARLY WATERFOWL HUNTING PROHIBITED IN LL RESERVATION WILD RICE WATERS

MNDNR promulgated an Experimental Early Waterfowl Teal Season set for September 4 through 8, 2021. Due to public safety concerns presented by the overlap of over-water waterfowl hunting and the Wild Rice harvest season within Leech Lake Reservation, Leech Lake Reservation Wild Rice waters will be closed to over-water waterfowl hunting for the experimental teal and early goose seasons.

The Leech Lake Band of Ojibwe maintains exclusive jurisdiction and authority over the management and protection of Wild Rice and Tribal Member safety. Closure of waters with actively harvested wild rice beds is consistent with MNN. STAT. 97A.151 & LLRBC Resolution #2022-16. Hunters on waters with active rice beds will be removed. For further information and list of closed waters please contact Leech Lake Division of Resource Management at 218-335-7400 or visit www.llojibwe.org/ldr.
Veaux defines her interest in business as one that started at home, and a desire to address the educational and workforce gap within the Leech Lake community.

“My mom went to BSU when I was a child and became a licensed teacher when I was 10. She has since retired, but I was fortunate to watch her experience the joy of teaching others and the relationships she developed with her “kids” during her career. I began studying business as an undergraduate, as a practical matter. I had been working at the Palace Casino / Leech Lake Gaming and resigned to attend school full-time. I knew I needed a job after college to support my family and business was a common minimum requirement. There was a definite need and gap in professionals in our community, with a formal educational background in business. In school, I developed a love for higher education and for the field of business. After graduating, I worked at Leech Lake Tribal College and completed an MBA. A year after earning my MBA, I had the opportunity to teach as an adjunct and realized I truly love teaching,” said Veaux.

Veaux not only teaches business, but is the co-owner of Voxes, LLC, an Indigenous owned e-commerce gift shop, and DomiNative Development, an Indigenous owned multi-sport event production company. She helps students yearly define their business models and present mock startups for class projects.

“I believe that my role in life is to teach others to love business just as much as I do and to consider alternate ways of operating businesses that may not be in what many consider a “traditional business model.” I specifically love business because business is what drives the economies we have all become accustomed to living within. Businesses provide opportunities and opportunities are what our people need to truly thrive and “rebuild” our nations. While virtually every field of study needs Native people, I highly encourage students to study business. Studying business opens so many doors and provides so many more opportunities, as every organization needs people who know and understand business. Business people may work in nonprofits, tribal governments, or for profit institutions. They may be experts in human resources, marketing, management, information systems, or accounting. Some business people start their own businesses, creating more opportunities for themselves and others. The possibilities in business are limitless,” said Veaux.

Community members interested in taking courses at Bemidji State in the Business Administration department are encouraged to contact admissions at (218) 755-2001, and 1500 Birchmont Dr NE, Bemidji, MN 56601 M-F 8am-4:30.

Minnesota COVID-19 update: September

By Kayla Duos

MINNEAPOLIS – Minnesota’s newest COVID-19 data shows the state has more than 16,000 known active cases, the highest count since late April.

The seven-day daily average of newly reported cases is also the highest since the spring surge. The burden on Minnesota hospitals are similar now to the wave the state saw in mid-April. State officials have been anxious for weeks about a potential COVID-19 surge stemming from the new school year, Labor Day gatherings, the Delta 19 variant and the Minnesota State Fair and it seems the numbers have come to pass despite the new mandates set in place for workers/students across the state.

Among those new mandates include Minnesota government officials being asked to either be vaccinated or tested regularly before returning to work, Minnesota State is asking all students to be vaccinated and local area schools asking students/staff to be masked such as Cass Lake Bena, Bemidji Area Schools, LLTC, Bemidji State and Bug O Nay Ge Shig.

Meanwhile, The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has approved booster vaccinations for people 65 or older, as well as people aged between 16 and 65 who have a pre-existing condition.

It’s expected a rollout of these booster vaccinations can be seen in communities in the following months, while studies continue on the efficacy of boosters for the general population and for children under 18.

Health officials say approximately 12,051,773 Minnesotans have been tested for the virus so far including 8,482 on the reservation.

If you are experiencing symptoms or have been exposed, please call the Cass Lake IHS COVID hotline at 335-3426 or 335-3427 Monday through Friday 8:00 am to 4:30 pm. If you are experiencing shortness of breath, please contact the Emergency Department at 335-3327 or dial 911.

IHS eligible community members 18 years and older are now eligible to receive the COVID vaccine. If you are interested please call the COVID-19 Vaccine hotline and reserve your spot now at 218-368-4763.

Free Chronic Wasting Disease Testing

By Tanya Roerick, Wildlife Biologist, LLBO DRM

Chronic wasting disease (CWD), a fatal brain disease which infects deer, elk, and moose, has previously been found in SE Minnesota. Recently a deer farm in Beltrami County had several deer test positive for CWD. This farm is close to the Reservation boundary and it is unknown at this time if the disease has escaped the farm. Diseases of this type are a concern to all of us because of its potential to affect our deer population, hunting, and health.

The Leech Lake Division of Resource Management (DRM) will be providing free CWD testing for deer harvested by tribal deer hunters. Hunters participating in the testing can drop off deer heads at the DRM in Cass Lake or several communities within the Reservation. Hunters will receive a $25 voucher for their participation in CWD surveillance.

What is CWD?

CWD is a disease caused by a prion and causes the infected animal’s brain to deteriorate. It can be spread by direct and indirect contact (saliva, feces, urine, and blood). CWD is always fatal for an infected animal and there is currently no treatment or cure.

How do you test for CWD?

At this time CWD can only be tested for by killing an animal because it requires the lymph nodes located in the head to be sent to a lab for testing. You can bring your deer head to the Leech Lake DRM or one of the other drop off locations to have your deer tested.

Signs of an infected deer:

CWD is a slow progressive disease and can take years before symptoms appear. Below are some of the most common symptoms of CWD, before returning:

- Thin, sickly appearance
- No fear of humans
- Excessive salivation, thirst, and urination
- Drooping ears

Please report any ill looking deer to the DRM Wildlife Biologist or Conservation Officer

How can you help prevent CWD?

Do not bait or feed deer
- Eliminate attractants that cause deer to congregate in an area
- Do not import animals or part of animals from infected areas
- Do not dispose of deer parts in the wild where other animals may come in contact with them.

If you have any questions regarding CWD please contact the DRM wildlife biologist at 218-335-7400.
WASHING TON – The FBI is offering a $10,000 reward for any information on Mary Johnson, a Native American woman who went missing from the Tulalip Reservation in Washington state.

The press release that went live September 15, asks for any information leading to the identification, arrest, and conviction of whoever is responsible for her disappearance.

Johnson, 40, also known as Mary Johnson Davis, was reported missing on December 9, 2020, according to the FBI’s Most Wanted website. She was last seen November 25, 2020, as she walked on Firetrail Road on the Tulalip Indian reservation in Marysville, Washington on her way to a friend’s house, to which she never arrived.

Johnson is 5 feet, 6 inches tall and weighs 115 pounds. She has black hair, brown eyes and a sunburst-type tattoo on her upper right arm, and a scar across her nose and a birthmark on the back of her neck.

Her disappearance is being investigated by the FBI’s Seattle Field Office and the Tulalip Tribal Police.

If you have any information concerning the location of this individual, please call the FBI’s Seattle Field Office at (206) 622-0460. You may also contact your local FBI office, the nearest American Embassy or Consulate, or you can submit a tip online at tips.fbi.gov.

WASHINGTON – Federal officials will meet with Native American tribes next month to gather recommendations to protect and restore tribal homelands.

In a press release, sent out September 14, the Department of Interior invited Tribal leaders to give their advice on 3 key topics: the land-into-trust process, leasing and rights-of-way, sacred sites and treaty rights.

“At interior we have an obligation to work with Tribes to protect their lands and ensure that each community has a homeland where its citizens can live together to lead safe and fulfilling lives,” Assistant Secretary for Indian Affairs Bryan Newland said. “These important actions are a step in the right direction to restore homelands that will strengthen Tribal communities.”

Federal policies dating back more than a century have eroded the land base of Indian Tribes across the United States. By placing lands into trust status through the Department, Tribes are able to reacquire lands within or near their reservations, establish a land base for Tribal communities and clarify jurisdiction over their lands.

In a press release, sent out September 14, the Department of Interior invited Tribal leaders to give their advice on 3 key topics: the land-into-trust process, leasing and rights-of-way, sacred sites and treaty rights.

“Tribes have faced delays and increasing costs in efforts to develop housing projects, manage law enforcement agencies and develop local economies as a result of unnecessary hurdles in the land-into-trust process.

The virtual sessions are scheduled for Oct. 18, 21, 25 and 26, and will take place over zoom. Those wishing to register can find the link, and registration information on the DOI website.
Summer Wild Rice Bowl

⁹⁄₄ sweet potato ⁴⁄₄ cup green onion ⁴⁄₄ cup red onion
⁴⁄₄ cup red pepper ¹ cup zucchini ¹ cup cauliflower
2 tablespoon olive oil ¹⁄₂ cup wild rice, boiled
Turmeric and tarragon to taste

Directions: Prepare the wild rice according to package directions. Chop or dice all vegetables. Mix all of the vegetables together except the onions. Sauté the onions with the olive oil, the tarragon and the turmeric until soft. Add the rest of the vegetables and sautée until all are soft, stirring frequently. Serve the vegetables over the rice.

This wonderful summer recipe presented by Chyrle LaDuke (Food Distribution) and Brianna Angstman (SHIP) is a fine example of a sound nutritional concept: it is important to eat a variety of foods in the day, particularly fruits, vegetables, beans, legumes and lean meats. One does not have to look far into the ingredient list here to understand this point. For a first example, sweet potatoes are at the top of the Vitamin A best source list. One half cup contains 961 mcg RAE (Retinol Activity Equivalents). To put this into perspective, men 19 years and older need 15 mg for all persons over the age of fourteen. Vitamin E is an important antioxidant and helps prevent cell and tissue damage. A handful of spinach and a chopped clove of garlic added to this dish while the vegetables are cooking would add a flavorful and powerful punch of Vitamin K. This vitamin is essential for proper blood clotting and bone mineralization.

To find B Vitamins in this dish we can turn to the carbohydrate rich base – or the wild rice. Wild rice contains B9 - (folic acid), B1 - (thiamine), B2 – (riboflavin), B3 – (niacin) and B6. Folic acid is needed for cell and hemoglobin formation. B6 is essential for the immune and nervous system function. Thiamin, riboflavin and niacin are needed for energy production in the body. Furthermore, according to the Native Wild Rice Coalition, wild rice is high in dietary fiber and protein. It is low in saturated fat and salt. As an incomplete protein it should be used with complimentary foods to ensure complete protein in the diet. Therefore, a one half to one cup serving of low sodium beans of choice, one ounce of sliced cheese or three ounces of lean chopped chicken breast would improve the protein content nicely. It would also round this dish out from a side dish into a complete meal.

As to the preparation of wild rice: Sean Sherman discusses wild rice and his method of preparation in his cookbook: The Sioux Chef’s Indigenous Kitchen. He recommends one cup of wild rice to four cups of water and salt to taste. Rinse the rice thoroughly through a colander until the water runs clear. Bring the rice and water to a boil, reduce heat and simmer for 15-20 minutes. He seasons the cooking water with a small branch of cedar.

This meal need not take much time by preparing the vegetables while the rice is cooking. If adding a protein such as a lean chicken breast, this may be prepared by steaming the chicken breast in a steamer basket placed over a small amount of boiling water in a sauce pan until the juices run clear. Surprisingly, this takes as little as 7 minutes for three ounces of lean chicken breast. If planning meals ahead for the week the rice and chicken may be cooked ahead of time and the vegetables rinsed and chopped for the next day.

Regarding the herb and spice in this recipe, according to: https://naturalmedicines.therapeuticresearch.com turmeric is a common spice that comes from the root of Curcuma Longa. It contains an anti-inflammatory substance called curcumin. Tarragon is frequently used to flavor curry powders, mustards, butters and cheeses. Supplemental turmeric may be beneficial in improving a variety of health conditions most notably osteoarthritis. It may provide heart health benefit in the reduction of triglyceride. Tarragon is a perennial and culinary herb used in flavoring foods and beverages. The flavor has been described as a mixture of bitterness and sweetness, between anise and fennel.

Finally, take care in the cooking for your food to preserve vitamins and consider the following tips:

• Use fresh fruits and vegetables such as greens, broccoli and berries within 2-3 days.
• If possible, wait to wash or chop fruits and vegetables until ready to use.
• Rinse under cool water and avoid soaking for long periods of time.
• Leave on edible skins as much as possible.
• Cook vegetables quickly using as little water as possible.
• Steaming or microwaving works well.
• Add any leftover water to soups.

The Native Vote on Tribal Lands
Klobuchar, Smith, Colleagues Introduce Legislation to Protect Voting Rights for Native Americans, Alaska Natives & People Living on Tribal Lands

Jane Meyer, Klobuchar Press Office

WASHINGTON – U.S. Senator Amy Klobuchar (D-MN), Chairwoman of the Senate Rules Committee with jurisdiction over federal elections, and U.S. Senator Tina Smith (D-MN) joined Senator Ben Ray Luján (D-NM) and 13 of their Senate colleagues to introduce legislation to protect the right to vote and ensure equal access to the electoral process for Native Americans, Alaska Natives, and People Living on Tribal lands. Companion legislation was introduced in the House by U.S. Representatives Sharice Davids (D-KS) and Tom Cole (R-OK).

“The right to vote is the foundation of our democracy, but exercising that right remains too difficult for many Americans, especially those in historically disenfranchised communities,” said Klobuchar. “This legislation will help address the challenges that many people in Native American and Tribal communities face that impact access to the ballot box. Our democracy works best when all citizens are able to participate, and this bill is an important step forward in making that a reality.”

“Voting is the most fundamental right in any democracy. We need a transparent election process that we can trust and where Americans have equal freedom to vote,” said Smith. “But right now, coordinated campaigns are trying to restrict the right to vote for Indigenous, Brown and Black Americans. Congress needs to pass the NAVRA Act to protect voters’ rights on Tribal lands and Tribe’s sovereignty in upholding those rights. I’m also pushing the Senate to pass the John Lewis Voting Rights Advancement Act to continue defending our democratic process.”

The Frank Harrison, Elizabeth Peratovich, and Miguel Trujillo Native American Voting Rights Act (NAVRA) would enact key measures to protect the right to vote and ensure equal access, including allowing Tribes to specify the number and location of requested voter registration sites, drop boxes, and polling locations on Tribal lands. It would also authorize Tribal ID cards for voting purposes. Additionally, the bill would secure $10 million to establish task forces focused on identifying barriers to voting for Native Americans, Alaska Natives, and People Living on Tribal lands. The bill would also require prior Tribal notice and consent before States and local governments could remove, consolidate, or otherwise reduce access to voting locations on Tribal lands.

The legislation is led by Senator Ben Ray Luján (D-NM) and cosponsored by Senators Richard Blumenthal (D-CT), Catherine Cortez Masto (D-NV), Dick Durbin (D-IL), Dianne Feinstein (D-CA), Martin Heinrich (D-NM), Mazie Hirono (D-HI), Jeff Merkley (D-OR), Alex Padilla (D-CA), Jacky Rosen (D-NV), Bernie Sanders (I-VT), Brian Schatz (D-HI), Jon Tester (D-MT), Chris Van Hollen (D-MD), and Elizabeth Warren (D-MA) in addition to Klobuchar and Smith. More than 30 voting rights and Tribal organizations have endorsed the legislation.

As Chairwoman of the Rules Committee, with jurisdiction over federal election law, Klobuchar has been a leading advocate for protecting the right to vote and increasing access to the electoral process. In March, she introduced the For the People Act with Senator Jeff Merkley (D-OR) and Senator Chuck Schumer (D-NY) to establish national standards for ballot access, ban partisan gerrymandering, and end the influence of dark money in elections. In July, under Klobuchar’s leadership the Rules Committee traveled to Georgia to hold its first field hearing in 20 years to spotlight the unprecedented attack on voting rights in the state.

Smith is also committed to fighting voter suppression and making sure Americans’ voices are heard. She supports the For The People Act as well as the John Lewis Voting Rights Advancement Act.

Helena Gerhardson

Helena Marie (Annette) Gerhardson, 64, of Bemidji, MN died Tuesday, August 31, 2021 at Sanford Bemidji Medical Center.

A private service will be held. The Cease Family Funeral Home of Bemidji assisted the family.

Helena was born March 27, 1957 in Cass Lake, MN, the daughter of William and Helena Gerhardson. She was raised and educated in Red Lake and attended the University of Minnesota – Duluth and Bemidji State University earning degrees in both Sociology and Education.

She wrote of her life: “I love my family and friends dearly. I lived a blessed life, and thought the world of my daughter, Lara. The love of my life was Ray Blowers who I met in April of 2006. I enjoyed working for the Minnesota Chippewa Tribe as Education Director providing educational services for the students. I loved the Lord and tried to live a life pleasing to God. I was happy with all the joy people brought to my life.”

Her daughter adds, “She is the most incredible blessing in my life. God gifted her to me. She made my life magical, full of adventures, learning, joy, and love. We travelled the world together, relished road trips, played Scrabble (she had beat me 7 times in a row the days prior to her passing), worked on crafts, and a day never passed without laughter and ‘I love yous.’ She was a gifted photographer, a published poet, a proud former hospital board member, an educator, and a lifelong learner. A play based on one of her poems was commissioned several times and was last performed at the DECC to a room of over 1800 attendees. She kept the audience rapt at the Q&A with her thoughtful answers and humor. When people talk about her the same words repeat: kind, funny, smart, generous, humble, adventurous, amazing, faithful, a storyteller, a heart of gold, and to know her was to love her. I will miss her every day, forever, until we meet again.”

She is survived by her daughter Lara Gerhardson of Bemidji, MN, sisters Dr. Kathleen Annette of Cohasset, MN, Billie Annette (James Kloesel) of Bemidji, MN, and beloved nieces, nephews, great nieces and great nephews.

She was preceded in death by her parents, brother Andrew John Annette, soulmate Ray Blowers, and her friend Dan Peil.

In lieu of flowers, donations to one of her favorite charitable organizations are requested: Doctors Without Borders, Mercy Ships, St. Mary’s Mission – Red Lake, The Carter Center, Environmental Defense Fund, Disabled American Veterans, Greenpeace, ASPCA, or St. Jude Children’s Hospital.

Condolences may be left at ceasefuneralhome.com
